'Affair' Blamed In Slaying of Girl, 15

OHIO OFFICER ENDS OWN LIFE AFTER MURDER

Turns Gun on Self After He Kills High School Pupil in Friend's Home.

DIES LATER IN HOSPITAL

Second Murder and Suicide Reported With Discovery of Bodies.

(By Associated Press)

IRONTON—With the blunt assertion, "You know what I told you last night," Constable Bert Mays, 28, shot to death Eloise Roberts, 15-year-old Kitts Hill high school student, and then killed himself at dawn today in her bedroom.

Coroner W. W. Lynd returned a verdict of murder and suicide. He said Mrs. Mays told him that her husband had been "running around" with the Roberts girl since last November. Both families lived at Dog Fork, 12 miles north of here.

Sadie Roberts, 30-year-old blind sister sleeping with Eloise, related that Mays walked into their bedroom, awakened the girl and said only, "You know what I told you last night," before firing a revolver shot into her head.

Mays then turned the gun on his own head and stumbled out of the house. He died two hours later in General hospital here.

Lynd was informed that the Lawrence township constable had been in the habit of going to the Roberts home each morning to drive Eloise's brother, Ned, to work at a tile company here. Mays also was employed there.

Members of the Roberts family declined to discuss the girl's reported "affair" with Mays, who was the father of two children.

POMEROY — (INS) — Sheriff George H. Bearhs said today that Elmer McCarty, 54, of Middleport, apparently shot and killed his wife and then himself as they lay in bed in their home in nearby Middleport.

The couples' bodies were discovered late yesterday by neighbors who, noting their absence, called at their home. McCarty was a former railroad conductor. Sheriff Bearhs said the husband may have been driven to desperation through illness and other worries.

Keep Aisles Open On Bank Nights, Mayor Tells Chief

Mayor W. J. Locke wants the aisles of Mansfield theaters and the sidewalks in front of them kept open on bank nights even if the National Guard—or at least deputies from the sheriff's office have to be called, he said today.

Locke notified Police Chief Meade K. Bates that the city traffic and fire laws must be enforced at the theaters on bank night. Bates said he couldn't do it because he didn't have enough officers.

"Then ask the sheriff's office for aid for an hour on Friday nights," the mayor told him, "and if that isn't enough, we'll put in a call for the National Guard."

Locke said the blocking of the aisles in the theaters was serious and that if there should be a fire or panic and people were injured, the responsibility would be on city officials for not enforcing the fire laws.

He added that he is constantly receiving complaints from residents who can't use the sidewalk on Park avenue west near the Ohio and Madison theaters and in front of the Majestic on North Walnut on bank night. All three theaters participate in Warner Brothers bank night.

Steady Gain In Business Noted Here

C. of C. Review Reveals Trend's Upward With One Exception.

Business in Mansfield, which closed 1939 at a smart pace, continued to show increases during the first two months of 1940, the latest Chamber of Commerce business review, released today, shows.

With a single exception the upward trend has been steady, with increases ranging from 3.4 per cent in postal receipts to 61.8 per cent in automobile sales.

The exception to the trend was the building permit classification, which was down 72 per cent, due to the fact that the half million dollar school building program was started during the early months of 1939.

Building permits for the first two months of 1940 totalled $161,675 as compared to $591,000 for theh same period last year.

There was another classification that was down — relief — but a downward trend in relief indicates an upward trend in business and employment. The relief load for the first two months of 1940 was 34.7 per cent under the same period of 1939.

Auto Sales Up 193.

Automobile sales, totaling 505 cars for the first two months of the year, showed an increase of 193 over the 312 automobiles sold during the January and February of 1939.

Bank clearings jumped 30 per cent over the 12 million dollars reported in the first two months of 1939. Clearings for the same period in 1940 totalled $15,000,000.

Postal receipts which hopped from $58,698 in the first two months of 1939 to $60,713 for the same period this year showed a 3.4 percent gain.

The chamber reported that sales tax receipts in the county were $75,821 as compared with $68,540 in the first two months of 1939.

With production levels generally above those of 1939, increases were shown in both industrial and mercantile employment. The report shows a total of 12,235 persons on Mansfield payrolls on March 1 as against 10,873 at the same time last year.

Bus fares which shot up 124 per cent in February showed a gain of 26 per cent for the first two months of 1940. A total of 392,204 passengers were reported this year as compared with 311,246 during the corresponding period last year.

Carloadings were up 17.8 per cent, with a total of 7,542 this year as against 6,326 in January and February last year.

BUY 'EM FASTER

Motorists 'Step on It' to Get 1940 License Plates.

Mansfield motorists were stepping up their purchase of 1940 license plates over last year, according to Deputy Registrar Frank Beverstock and today 700 more had been sold than in the first nine days of sale last year.

While the Auto club office is not crowded, there has been a fairly steady line of applicants at all windows, Beverstock said. There are eight workers in the office at present.

Last year 1,126 plates had been sold the first nine days of the sale, and up to this morning 1,826 plates had been sold.

Beverstock said that of the 15,200 license plates sold for 1939-40, only 8,500 were sold in March, or before the April 1 deadline for old plates. The office is open from 8 to 5 p. m.

Von Ribbentrop Assures Italy Russia Won't Invade Balkans

But Reds Angry Because Britain Refuses Aid In Peace Talks.

By JAMES E. BROWN
(INS Staff Correspondent)

LONDON — German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop during his Rome visit gave Italy written assurances that Soviet Russia has no intention of moving into the Balkans.

This was revealed to International News Service today by an unimpeachable Soviet source which at the same time bitterly attacked Britain's refusal—officially revealed yesterday—to forward Russian peace terms to the Finnish government.

In a discussion of the tangled European diplomatic situation, the Soviet informant expressed the view that any Anglo-French attack upon Russia as a means of aiding Finland would be "suicidal."

Discussing von Ribbentrop's journey to Rome, this source stated:

"Relations between Italy and Russia remain unchanged but von Ribbentrop was entrusted to make the assurances regarding the Balkans for the common good of Europe and to alloy unhappy suspicions.

"Furthermore, von Ribbentrop emphasized that Russia wishes peace and desires settlement of the Finnish conflict."

(According to a Reuters dispatch, the Rome radio announced after von Ribbentrop entrained for Berlin that no important changes in the Italian government's attitude toward the European war were likely to result from his visit and that the trend of Italo-German relations and obligations had not changed.)

The Soviet spokesman in London commented bitterly on Britain's refusal to transmit the Russian peace terms to Finland on grounds that the British government considered the Soviet proposals so "onerous" that they would place Finland in a "hopeless plight."

"England's refusel," said the informant, "to act as mediator reveals her as a war-monger. Her publication of the facts of Russian

FDR ASKS VIC TO RECONSIDER

Ohioan Called to White House for Special Conference With President.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— President Roosevelt called Senator Vic Donahey (D., O.) to the White House today to urge him to reconsider his recently announced decision to retire from public life.

"Honest Vic" as he is known in his home state, issued a statement while the president was on his Pacific cruise stating that he felt his long years of public service entitled him to retirement.

At a press conference last week the president said he hoped Donahey would reconsider and run for the senate or for governor because he was too valuable a public servant to be lost.

Before disclosing his decision to retire, Donahey had refused to permit use of his name as a "favorite son" candidate for the presidency in Ohio, on the ground he would be a mere stalking horse for President Roosevelt, should the executive seek a third term.

McGregor Finds Big Job's To Get 'Feet on Ground'

Freshman Congressman Says That's His Immediate Objective—Likes Capital, Its Friendliness.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—In the following story, Earl Berkley of the Associated Press staff in Washington interviews J. Harry McGregor, short term congressman from the 17th Ohio district, victor in last month's special election.)

By EARL BERKLEY

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The toughest job of a freshman in congress, in the opinion of J. Harry McGregor of Ohio's 17th district, is to get his feet on the ground—and keep them there.

"And that," said the 43-year-old Republican, "will be my objective during the next few weeks—perhaps months.

"The legislative program here has been organized by the old timers. There's little that a new member can do other than cooperate.

"I have no intention of writing new bills at this time—there are too many of them already."

The chubby, good-humored contractor, who resigned as house floor leader in the legislature to run for congress, was chosen in a special election Feb. 27, to succeed the late Rep. William A. Ashbrook, Democrat.

"I am going to like Washington," McGregor observed as he sat in his office contemplating his new environment. 'Everyone here makes you feel as one of them from the outset. They even answer tolerantly what to them must be obvious questions from newcomers."

McGregor said he considered government expenditures one of the difficult problems before congress. "Spending must be tapered ultimately," he said, "and I'm glad to hear that an economy bloc apparently is getting somewhere."

SALVAGE SHIP

British Report Seizure of Nazi Vessel as Prize.

LONDON —(AP)— The admiralty announced today that the German steamer Hanover, set afire and abandoned by her crew when intercepted by a British warship off Puerto Rico March 7, has been salvaged and towed to port as a prize.

(The Dominican government suggested yesterday that the American republics protest the case as a violation of the Pan-American neutrality zone. Thirty-seven of the Hanover's crew reached Ciudad Trujillo, the Dominican capital, in boats, and 55 others were believed taken prisoner.)

The admiralty's report on the 5,600-ton Hanover was included in its weekly review of shipping losses, which listed five British and no neutrals sunk by enemy action in the week ending midnight Sunday.

They totalled 18,673 tons, bringing to 640,000 the British merchant tonnage lost since the war began.

They were the Pacific Reliance, 6,717 tons; Thurston, 3,072; Counsellor, 5,068; Chevychase, 2,719; and Borthwick, 1,097.

COUNTY SCORES IN DRIVE FOR NEW CCC CAMP

Federal Director Recommends Soil Conservation Unit Near Mansfield.

SURVIVES BUDGET SLASH

Closing of Mohican State Park Camp Provided in Revamped Federal Program.

Richland county apparently had won its campaign for a CCC camp today while Ashland county was faced with the loss of its camp at Mohican State park near Loudonville.

Establishment of a federal soil conservation camp near Mansfield and closing of the Mohican park camp were among the recommendations submitted by J. J. McEntee, federal CCC director at Washington, to meet a proposed $65,000,000 cut in the CCC budget for the year.

Director McEntee said the CCC would discontinue 273 camps permanently beginning March 31, close 160 others for seasonal or other reasons, and re-establish them in new locations. In all, the total number of camps in the nation would be cut from 1,500 to 1,227 to meet President Roosevelt's budget recommendations.

12-Ace Camp Site Offered.

The Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, county farm organizations, and County Agent George B. Ganyard have worked for several months for a camp near Mansfield and the Chamber of Commerce offered the federal government 12 acres of land east of the city for a camp site.

The county agent said today that if a camp is established here it probably will be two or three miles south of Mansfield and would house 200 boys at the start.

He said U. S. army engineers have made two or three trips into the county recently to inspect proposed camp cites. The requirements call for a site of from 12 to 15 acres close to adequate water supply and in a location where drainage and sewage facilities are good.

If the camp is set up in the county, the youths in it would give demonstrations of soil conservation methods for farmers in this area and aid in erosion prevention work and soil improvement practices. The camps usually enter into a five-year contract with farmers to conduct the soil conservation experiments, Ganyard said.

British Hear of Conclusion of Moscow Parley

Treaty Not Yet Signed, Terms Remain Unrevealed; Copenhagen Says Finn Delegation Has Been Granted Power To Bring War To End.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—In a telephone call from Helsinki, Elijas Erkko, former Finnish foreign minister, today informed the British Broadcasting corporation that a settlement had been reported reached in Moscow.

Errko added he did not know the terms of the settlement, which are now to be presented to the Finnish parliament.

Edward Ward, B. B. C. reported at Stockholm, telegraphed to London:

"I have just been exclusively informed by telephone by the Finnish embassy that an agreement has been reached in Moscow although the treaty is not yet signed and the terms are still unknown."

Reuter's (British) news agency stated that at 5:45 p. m., the Finnish radio claimed that reports of a Russo-Finnish agreement were unconfirmed.

However, at 7 p. m. (1 p. m. EST) Reuter reported from Helsinki that the Russians were ready to make concessions regarding Petsamo and said that the chances of peace were 3 to 2.

GIVEN POWER TO SIGN

COPENHAGEN—(INS)—The Finnish delegation in Moscow was authorized by its government and parliament at 6:15 p. m. today (12:15 p. m. EST) to sign a peace treaty with Soviet Russia, the Copenhagen newspaper Politiken quoted informed Stockholm sources as saying.

The treaty is expected to be signed tomorrow morning, Politiken said, at which time hostilities will cease immediately and the terms of the agreement made public.

OPTIMISM IN DENMARK

(By Associated Press)

COPENHAGEN — The Finnish news agency announced today that it was authorized to state that the Finnish delegation still was in Moscow and that negotiations looking toward ending the Finnish-Russian war were continuing.

Optimism still was prevalent, however, and stock exchanges continued a lively upwards swing in the Scandinavian capitals.

The Scandinavian afternoon press speculated on the possibility that Britain's offer of help for Finland, announced by Prime Minister Chamberlain yesterday, might

PARIS: Daladier Says 50,000 Men Ready To Assist Finland

(By International News Service)

PARIS—France and Great Britain have organized and equipped an expeditionary force of 50,000 men for immediate dispatch to Finland if a new appeal for aid is received, Premier Edouard Daladier told the chamber of deputies today.

In addition, Daladier revealed that a few days ago "in reply to an urgent Finnish demand," France sent a number of ultra-modern bombers which have now arrived at the Russo-Finnish front.

Daladier disclosed that Finland had definitely promised to inform Britain and France by today as to whether the expeditionary force is wanted.

Stressing the fact that the troops are standing by in readiness for instant departure, Daladier pointed out that they could not be sent to Finland "unless a request is received."

"Dispatch of this force has been made difficult by the fact that Sweden and Norway oppose it," the premier said.

"On Feb. 26, French troops were made ready and transports concentrated at two ports in France and Britain for their shipment to Finland."

(Editor's note: This announcement indicated that the allies planned to aid Finland by landing an expeditionary force either at Petsamo, Finnish Arctic port now in Russian hands, or perhaps by essaying a landing at Murmansk, chief Polar soviet port.)

Daladier's dramatic announcement followed a similar declaration by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in the British house of commons yesterday. Chamberlain, however, did not go so far as to say that a full detachment of 50,000 men had already been made ready.

Daladier's dramatic announcement came while Russo-Finnish peace negotiations were still proceeding in Moscow. The strong British and French aid promised if Finland requests it was believed to have an important bearing on Finland's refusal thus far to accept extremely severe Russian terms of peace.

Before a chamber packed to overflowing and with many diplomats present, Daladier spoke in detail of the Allies' efforts to aid Finland.

"We have sent unceasing mate-

ANALYSIS: Finn - Red Peace Means Sharp Rebuff To Allies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

The Anglo-French brotherhood will have missed the boat de luxe in most disconcerting fashion if the Finns succumb to Bolshevist pressure and accept the Red peace terms which they have fought so hard and so long to escape.

That is to say, the moment the Finns sign a treaty the Allies will have suffered a major defeat in their war with Germany.

There is no other way to describe their failure (or call it inability) to intervene by force on the side of Finland, thereby establishing a new war theater from which to strike at both Russia and Germany.

It will represent a triumph for Hitler. He will have outsmarted his enemy in a big way, for he is the one who sent the Russians and Finns into a conference calculated to end their war and thus save him from grave danger.

Intervention presented a grand strategic opportunity, as the Allies' own experts have kept telling them. One strong advocate has been Leslie Hore-Belisha, British war minister who lost his cabinet positions recently for reasons never made public.

Throughout the months during which the Finns have defended their birthright in one of the fin-

6 Out of 6--A Perfect Comic Score

THE magazine "Sales Management" recently conducted a survey to discover which comic strips were the most popular, and who reads comic strips most regularly.

It printed the results of its survey in its March 1 issue.

Naturally, since The News-Journal prints comics both daily and Sunday, it was interested in the "Sales Management" survey.

As a matter of fact, it was more than interested after the results were printed—it was downright proud.

ALL OF THE TOP SIX COMICS, AS SELECTED IN THE SURVEY, APPEAR IN THE NEWS-JOURNAL!!!!

Of course, The News-Journal has striven for years to give its readers the cream of the comic crop—to keep abreast of the trend in comics, and to add the best of the new ones as they appeared. We've thought the comic pages were about as good as it was possible to put together—

BUT WE DIDN'T KNOW OUR SCORE WAS PERFECT!!!!

Here are the six leading comics chosen in the "Sales Management" survey:

Orphan Annie, Dick Tracy, Blondie, Gasoline Alley, Bringing Up Father and The Gumps.

Of those six, four appear in the News-Journal six days a week. They are Orphan Annie, Blondie, Bringing Up Father and The Gumps. Dick Tracy appears daily and Sunday. Gasoline Alley is one of the most popular features in The News-Journal's colored Sunday comic section.

We're glad "Sales Management" made its survey—and we're glad we're bringing you the best comics there are.

Expect Passage of $654,902,270 Naval Expansion Bill

LEADERS READY TO APPROVE 21 NEW FIGHTERS

Republicans Call Debt Week Chink in Defense of the Nation.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The $654,902,270 Vinson naval expansion bill, which increases the navy's fighting strength by 11 per cent, was thrust before the house for debate today, with passage expected.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) of the naval affairs committee, declaring that the measure is vitally necessary due to unsettled world conditions, predicted its virtually unanimous approval.

"Even with construction of ships authorized under this bill the American navy would be under that of Great Britain in tonnage and probably below the 5-3 ratio with Japan, formerly provided by treaty," said Vinson.

The bill, naval affairs committee members estimated, would provide for construction of 21 fighting ships and 22 auxiliary ships in two years. The fighting ships would be aircraft carriers, cruisers and submarines.

While navy chieftains declined to reveal their plans in testimony before the naval affairs committee, possibility of constructing 15,000 to 20,000-ton cruisers, mounting 14-inch guns, was raised. Biggest cruisers now are 10,000 tons.

The Vinson bill also authorizes expansion of the navy air force to a minimum of 4,500 planes. This represents an increase of approximately 1,000 planes over present limits. It also authorizes building of four lighter-than-air craft.

The bill represents a compromise between demands of the navy and the "economy bloc" in congress. The navy sought a $1,300,000,000 bill, which would provide for a 25 per cent increase in the navy's strength in five years.

Meanwhile, a Republican house caucus received a special report declaring that the weakest chink in the nation's defense armor is the "towering, ominous" national debt.

"We cannot go on this way and be secure in this troubled world," the report said. "Much as we should like to, we cannot consider our problem solely in terms of soldiers and sailors . . . our ability to mobilize . . . the resources of the country . . . depends fundamentally upon the strength of our national economy."

Despondency Blamed In Death Of Movie Writer

FORT MYERS, Fla.—(INS)—Ill health was blamed today for the suicide of John Monk Saunders, 42, story and screen writer who wrote the play "Wings."

Saunders, a second lieutenant in the U. S. army air service during the war, left John Hopkins hospital last fall, and was attended here by a nurse, Mrs. G. M. Dims of Baltimore until Friday, when she returned to Baltimore.

The writer's body was found, clad in swimming shorts and suspended by a beach robe belt, yesterday at his Fort Myers beach cottage, where he had been living in strict seclusion. Born in Hinckley, Minn., Saunders was educated at the University of Washington and Oxford University, England.

In June, 1928, he was married to Miss Fay Wray, screen actress. They were divorced in February, 1938, Miss Wray winning custody of their three and a-half year old daughter. Miss Wray testified that he had asked for a divorce and was given to fits of rage. When informed of his death in Hollywood, Miss Wray was stunned.

Besides "Wings," he wrote "Dawn Patrol," "Legion of the Condemned," "Nikki," "Battalion of Death," and many short stories. The body was held today pending funeral arrangements.

The ring, made of wire, was about a yard in circumference and Watts put on it more than a hundred keys taken from the box of lost keys which have been turned into the police department over a period of months. DONATES $2,500

G. O. P. Congressional Group Reports Aid to McGregor.

The Republican Congressional Campaign committee spent two and a half times as much on the successful campaign of Congressman J. Harry McGregor in the 17th district as the Democratic committee contributed to the losing campaign of Byron B. Ashbrook, a report of the clerk of the house of representatives showed today.

The G. O. P. committee's treasurer listed a $2,500 donation to McGregor's campaign last month. Ashbrook previously reported that the Democratic National Congressional committee contributed $1,000 to his campaign.

Expenditures of $2,000 in the 22nd district where Mrs. Frances Payne Bolton, a Republican, was elected, were listed by the G. O. P. treasurer.

Ashbrook said he spent $656 of his own money, while McGregor reported personal expenditures totaling $471.

1939 BUSINESS THIRD HIGHEST

Westinghouse Reports Incoming Orders in Only 1937 and 1929 Were Greater.

Incoming orders in 1939 were the third highest in the history of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, the company's annual report, released today, revealed.

Only 1937 and 1929 were higher, the company reported.

Orders received in 1939 amounted to $214,239,044, as compared with $149,662,776 in 1938, an increase of 43 per cent. Net sales were up 11 per cent. They totalled $175,071,363 in 1939 as compared with $157,953,216 in 1938.

Net income for the year was $13,854,365 in 1939 as compared with $9,052,773 in 1938, an increase of 53 per cent.

A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board and George H. Bucher, president, who signed the report, declared "We believe that good business will be maintained in the coming months, whether the war abroad continues or not. . . . Our business is better in every line: improvement in industrial, central station, marine and other 'heavy industry' equipment is matched by similar increased demands for refrigerators, electric ranges, lamps and other consumers' goods."

Most of the company's consumers' goods is manufactured and handled through the Mansfield division of the company.

The company reported dividends of $9,349,241 paid in 1939, equal to $3.50 on each share of common and preferred stock.

Unfilled orders were also up sharply in 1939 as compared to 1938. On Dec. 31, 1939, unfilled orders amounted to $70,821,960, or 76 per cent more than the $40,188,150 in unfilled orders on hand Dec. 31, 1938.

KING OF MAY EFFORT FLOPS

Texan's Write-in Campaign Fails in Campus Election.

HOUSTON, Tex.—(AP)—J. P. (just call me Petunia) Miller wanted to be Queen of the May at Rice institute. He said he would get even with the women for invading man's field of business, politics and the like.

He asked like a gentleman for a place on the ballot. The girls ruled him out; said he was unconstitutional. Petunia said okey, he'd be king, then. The coeds said no, they didn't need any king.

Miller, determined, fell back on that old political standby, a write-in campaign. That was all right with the girls. They elected Maryellen Snyder with 773 votes; pitched Petunia's 18 in the waste basket.

EXPECT PSYCHIATRISTS TO SAY SLAYER WAS INSANE AT SHOOTING

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Psychiatrists were summoned to the stand today as testimony in the first-degree murder trial of John L. McCormick went into final stages.

Dr. Joseph Fetterman and Dr. George H. Reeve, affiliated with Western Reserve university, have studied the 21-year-old Pittsburgher and the defense expects them to support its contention that the former University of Pittsburgh student, although sane now, was insane at the time of two robberies and the slaying.

The youth is accused of robbing Western Union Telegraph company offices in East Liverpool, O., and Fairmont, W. Va., and killing Theodore Nichols, a special guard, in holding up the downtown Cleveland office Jan. 8.

Three court-appointed psychiatrists are scheduled to take the stand later.

McCormick yesterday sought to repudiate a signed confession in which he said he killed Nichols in a pistol duel while they stood face to face four feet apart. He repeatedly replied, "I don't know," as County Prosecutor Frank T. Cullitan questioned him about statements in the confession. "I have no impression of shooting at anything," the student testified. "The detective prompted me. Those statements are what I presumed happened."

ICE BLOCKS MAUMEE BAY

Skipper Says Winds Create Worst Jam In Many Years.

TOLEDO—(U.P.)—Unusual winds have created the worst ice jam in Maumee bay and western Lake Erie in 35 years, Capt. Ralph Millard, head of the Great Lakes Towing company, said today.

Capt. Millard attempted to batter through the ice today with a freighter headed for Detroit but was forced to turn back. He said the veering winds were responsible for the ice pileup rather than thick ice.

F. D. R. CERTAIN OF MAJORITY IN STATE'S VOTING

Republicans Choosing Slate for Senator Bridges, Favorite Son.

(By United Press)

CONCORD, N. H.—The first presidential preference primary was held today in New Hampshire with President Roosevelt assured of at least 3½ of the state's eight Democratic national convention votes, and virtually certain to win the majority required from a full slate of delegates pledged to a third term.

The Republicans were electing a slate favoring Sen. H. Styles Bridges, "a favorite" son, for president.

The Democrats elect eight at-large delegates who will have a half vote each in the convention, and two delegates with a full vote from each of two districts.

There were 16 candidates for the at-large places. Eleven of them were pledged to Mr. Roosevelt; two to Postmaster General James A. Farley; one to Vice President John N. Garner and two are unpledged but they oppose a third term for Roosevelt. In the first district, two of four candidates for the two whole-vote places are pledged to Roosevelt. In the other district all three candidates are pledged to the president.

Eight candidates competed for the at-large Republican posts, each with a full vote. The delegates will not be pledged, but seven have announced in favor of Sen. Bridges. The other is listed for District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York but Dewey has disowned him, out of regard for Bridges' "favorite son" status.

Sen. Bridges is a candidate for the Republican convention delegation, as is Gov. Francis P. Murphy, who has announced his "availability" for the vice presidential nomination.

Pledges made by convention delegates are binding until the candidate himself releases them. Thus, if Mr. Roosevelt wins a pledged delegation, only his announcement that he is not a candidate would release the New Hampshire delegation from voting for him at the Chicago convention.

FACES PRISON

Boxer Convicted of Killing Nazi Secretary.

NEW YORK — (INS) — Ernie Haas, 24, a Canadian boxer, today faced a 10 to 20 year prison term following his conviction on a charge of first degree manslaughter for the killing of Dr. Walter Engelberg, Nazi consulate secretary, last Dec. 5.

While the boxer's wife, Barbara, who is expecting a baby soon, wept, the defendant, whose real name is Ernest Walter Kehler, was denounced by Judge Peter J. Brancato as "a clever, shrewd murderer" and "a cheap bum who would do anything for five dollars."

As for the defense contention that Haas beat Dr. Engelberg while defending himself from an attack, Judge Brancato said: "I don't believe there was an attack."

The Nazi attache was found brutally bludgeoned to death in the house in Brooklyn where he lived alone. Soon afterwards, Haas was arrested in Canada.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Excerpts from Miss Midnight's Diary.

Business, if you could call it that, has picked up a little on Broadway the past week. A few more people drifted in to see the shows, the night-clubbing debutantes and some of the sun-tanned Times Square comedians wafted back from Florida and turned up just where you would expect to find them—in the bistros—and the matinee-going ladies were made swooningly happy by the return to the stage of Franchot Tone.

There were enough Hollywood stars in town to keep the autograph hounds happy, and enough autograph hounds to keep the Hollywood stars happy.

The only usually ubiquitous face mising from the midnight scene was that of Tommy Manville, who apparently has given up blondes and boites for Lent, to become the hermit of New Rochelle.

But no matter if Tommy does stay away from the haunts, he is always sure to be represented, if only in what you might or might not call spirit, by a couple of fur coats. In Leon and Eddie's Sunday night, for instance, Tommy was just a dim memory, but there at prominent tables were two full length silver fox coats he had purchased with his own pennies—one encasing Lois DeFee, the beauty who holds the altitude record for girls in their stocking feet, the other wrapping the shoulders of Elinor Troy, who of late has been doing better than Helen of Troy.

Lois wore a transparent rain cape over her furs, and bestowed her smiles on Bernt Balchen, the aviator, who had to stand on tiptoe to whisper in her ear.

Franchot Tone was giving that attentive you're-the-only-girl-in-the-world look to Ann Stewart, the pretty younger sister of Diana Ward, the singer who is now married to the Earl of Lincolnshire. . . . Beverly Roberts, the former motion picture actress who has become a torch singer under the coaching of Al Seigel, applauded generously for the chanting of Joan Merrill, another Seigel protege, and Milton Berle came in breathless and with a great show of excitement.

Over at the Tavern it looked like Family Night, with Billy Rose, Nicky Blair and Bert Lahr dining together, all with their pretty wives.

It also looked like comedian night. There was Milton Berle again, ordering Tartar steak a la Hedy Lamarr (what does that mean, sizzling?) Frank McHugh joking with Bert Wheeler, Ezra Stone dining by himself, and Harold Lloyd eating alone and unrecognized. Frances Farmer looked gayer than usual as she chatted with her good-looking escort, and John Garfield, at a nearby table, waxed enthusiastic about his new play.

It was certainly a night for circulating. By the time I got La-Conga, Franchot Tone was there dancing with Ann Stewart and Elinor Troy was making merry with her party, the host of which was a well-known brewer.

The presence of the Jimmy Walkers caused Joe Morand's orchestra to strike up with "Will You Love Me In December as You Did In May?"—but in rhumba tempo, which I must say did the tune no harm. . . .

Sally O'Neill divided her attention between two admirers, Billy Livingston and Mary Ann Travers did a super-energetic conga, and Patsy Kelly played hostess to the largest and gigglingest group in the room.

Tuesday night at the Savoy-Plaza Peggy Hopkins Joyce demonstrated that although her wedding ring finger may be slightly calloused, her girlish enthusiasm is not, for she banged her glassware with tempo and apparent delight when Hildegarde went into her "Tinkle" routine.

Ethel Merman and Bert Lahr did a little swing drumming on their water glasses, too.

The Theater Guild, on Wednesday evening, brought to the stage Ernest Hemingway's first play, "The Fifth Column," for which I have thought of a suitable subtitle, concerning a work of Alexander Pope.

If Franchot Tone was offstage from the time the curtain went up until it went down, it was only long enough to go out and mop his brow and get a drink of water, and I can't think of a play in which the star worked longer and harder—or, I might add, with better dramatic result.

The audience was full of dowagers downstairs and what looked to be jitterbugs upstairs, with an occasional pretty first-nighters appearing in the lobby. Among these were Betty Lawford, in a slim black dinner dress; Ted Husing in a slim black dinner jacket, Nona Montez in a lace mantilla, and Betty Furness Green in a tomato red dress with white polka dots.

Mr. Norman Pincus, the well-tailored owner of the Alvin, explained the youthful balcony crowd by saying:

"The subject matter of the play appeals to the boys, and Franchot Tone appeals to the girls."

Afterwards the Algonquin was swimming with interesting faces. Adrienne Ames glittered in with artist Jaro Fabry, John Emery, who is a road-show widower, escorted Muriel Hutchinson, Dorothy Gish came in looking Dresdenish, as usual, and Ole Olsen looked anything but . . . Gilbert Miller was in a genial mood, Libby Holman giggled at John Buckmaster's drolleries; Louis Bromfield, in from Ohio for a short story, wore a thoughtful air, and Diana Barrymore skimmed across the room to her table like Glamor with sails.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The school system of America should be trembling to its roots. Its sworn enemy, Forrest Tucker, looks like a Hollywood success.

Young Mr. Tucker is 25, six feet four inches tall, and weighs 205 pounds. A blond giant, he is possessed of enough athletic vitality to wear down ten school systems. He seems to have contented himself, however, with exercising his talents on the faculties of the 17 different schools he attended in the course of his geographically widespread studies.

The skipping about was due only in part to his ingrained derision for the system. He did not always leave schools by request; most of the time it was simply because his family moved. He has lived in Plainfield, Ind., (where he was born on Lincoln's birthday) in Des Moines, in Denver, and in Arlington, Va.

MR. TUCKER tells me these things as he quaffs a light drink, called a Pimm's and redolent of cumumbers in a Derby booth. His huge bulk, his overbearing vitality, and his enthusiasm for his favorite topic gave me sympathy for those china pieces in that shop wherein the bull wandered.

He was not, you may have gathered, a model scholar. By his own account he held most school rules in contempt, and broke as many as he found inconvenient. He won a debate, once, taking the affirmative on a subject concerning the incompetence of teachers.

He resented being forced in to a "grade" patterned for pupils less advanced than he. He arranged, at one school, to devote only two and one-half days weekly to attending classes. At another he was expelled for smoking on the school grounds, then reinstated.

On the less arrogant side, however, he had his points.

"I'm a self-educated man," he tells me. "I'm a Quaker. From the age of four on I was taught to spend an hour each day in thought. So I learned how to think. I still spend an hour each day, just thinking. And I keep on with my education. I make it a point to read at least 24 new books a year; each night I open the encyclopedia at random, and read up on a new subject; each night I take a new word from the dictionary, and make it my own. That's 365 new words a year, 365 new subjects I'm familiar with. And every night I ask myself, have I hurt anyone today? Have I done anything wrong for myself? If I have, I try next day to do better. I sound like a screwball, don't I?"

TUCKER played the sympathetic heavy in "The Westerner" with Gary Cooper. It was his first role. He came to Hollywood last August, without previous acting experience, to break into movies.

NAZIS WONDER ABOUT RUSSIAN WAR EXPORTS

Can Soviet Furnish Grain, Iron Ore and Oil, They Ask as New Turn Impends in Conflict.

Editor's Note Here is the second dispatch in the series surveying conditions in Europe on the eve of a possible turn of events.

By FREDERICK OESCHNER
(UP Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN—A factor which German industrialists refer to as "the Russian soul is causing serious concern here as Germany prepares to cope with a possible turn of events this spring in her war against the Allies

The phrase originated with German experts who returned from Moscow with smiles on their faces because of the optimistic estimates they had been given as to Russia's ability to supply the reich war machine with grain, iron ore, manganese and, ultimately, with oil

Now the experts are wondering whether the Russian soul' will permit those supplies to be exported as promptly as Germany may need them Observers hear complaints that "time just doesn't mean the same thing to the Russian soul that it does to us. We are wondering whether the Russians are not so much like other easterners that they will be unable to keep up the momentum"

Germany is fighting for life against the British blockade and is counting on Russia as an ace in the hole. This explains German anxiety to see the Finnish war ended so that Russia will not be using up all its oil and other vital supplies and can divert a substantial part of them to Germany.

Germany's need is not immediately urgent, say for this spring and summer, but the sooner Russia is free of the Finnish tangle and starts speeding up production to create a surplus for Germany, the better the Germans will be pleased.

Estimates on how soon Russian deliveries in large quantities can begin to flow vary, but some German experts have stated it would take two years before German-Russian trade could reach a volume where it might sustain German economy materially

Must Live on Reserves

Until then, it has been stated that Germany will be forced to live on her reserves and on imports which—as in the case of such vital w-ter materials as Rumanian oil and Jugoslavian copper—are insufficient and in the case of Turkish chromium have ceased altogether.

When Germany's reserves are depleted, she might be in a serious position unless replenishments have really started flowing steadily and in quantity

If the German-Russian pact does not live up to German expectations, it will not be the fault of the Germans. They realize its importance and are trying everything possible to remove the kinks.

Its importance was perhaps best expressed by Adolf Hitler himself in his statement that Germany must export or die which means that the exports must bring needed goods flowing in the other direction

The German man in the street has been told these things and understands them His attitude is that he is ready to suffer a long haul, or to fight for a knockout when the order is given

The general public is convinced that nothing but a miracle can prevent a violent increase in the fighting as soon as the weather permits

Not sure whether Germany or the Allies will take the offensive, the public seems certain that the drive will come in the air and that it will be vicious There is no sign of tragic apprehension but just a stolid acceptance of facts

March is traditionally Hitler's 'lucky month' and that thought unquestionably is bulking large in the average man's—and perhaps Hitlers — speculation on the changes of a sudden military or political triumph

FIGHT FOR LOVE + + + + + + +

By SYLVIA TAYLOR
(Copyright, 1940)

CHAPTER XVII

Star did not even return to the boarding house for dinner, but went directly to her mother's. As usual, however, her thoughtfulness was wasted. Mamie was in a sullen mood, which Star knew would last for hours. Sadly she returned to the street car and reached home pale and weary. The boarding-house dinner hour was past but she was too tired to care. As she entered the door, she met Clifford Payne coming out.

"Hi, there!" he called joyfully. "We thought you had ditched us for another date"

He paused in real concern as he saw her dejected expression.

"Star, darling, what's the matter? Something is worrying you. Won't you tell me what it is?"

Tears filled her eyes but she shook her head

Clifford asked, "Have you had your dinner yet? No, I'll bet you haven't. Well, how about changing into something else and coming out with me? Bruce has deserted me and gone to a movie, so we can step out by ourselves for once"

* * *

She started to refuse, but the prospect of an evening alone in her room was too gloomy. And it was really wonderful what a hot bath and fresh clothes could do for low spirits. Dressed in sleek black satin with a tiny hat to match, Star felt like a different person Clifford's compliments fell upon grateful ears It helped to have some one saying such things. The tenderness she had craved from her mother would always be denied, it soothed her bruised feelings to know that Clifford was so sincerely fond of her.

"You are beautiful," he said "But that isn't all. There is something so mysterious about you Perhaps because you never speak of your past or tell us anything about your family But you must have one somewhere Girls don't just spring up from nowhere"

"Let's not talk about it," Star begged "Tonight I want to forget everything unpleasant"

"Where shall we go?" he asked as they entered his car. "Want to drive some place, or stay in the city?"

Remembering their last experience. Star suggested that they remain in town Afterward she wondered at the coincidence which made Clifford take her to the place he did But like everything else in her life, it seemed to have ben directed by a fate outside her control

Things like that were always happening to her. Probably always would For no apparent reason she would turn a corner at the one moment during the whole day when she would meet a certain person the car she was riding in would be the first to pass after Joe had been killed; the night she sought the yacht harbor in her despair would be the same that Milton Wood returned from a week's vacation.

And tonight, as she danced light as a feather in Clifford's arms, her eyes fell upon her employer's wife. But Jennifer was not with her husband She was dancing cheek to cheek with a man who reminded Star of Joe, only he was better dressed.

At first the older woman did not recognize her, but as Star took her place at a nearby table Jennifer's eyes widened with alarm. She spoke hurriedly to her companion whose furtive eyes crossed to the girl and stared with ill concealed annoyance Shrugging, he asked for his check, wrapped the mink cape about Jennifer's shoulders, and they left.

Mrs. Wood must know she had already seen her. She ought to know it was none of her business. No matter what she might see, Milton Wood's secretary would not dare say anything against his wife. But the incident worried Star. Why should she have to be the one to witness the lady's indiscretion? Jennifer disliked her anyway. Antagonism had flared between them on the first day Jennifer entered her husband's office, Star admitted, recalling it. Remembering also the telephone conversation when Mrs. Wood had insisted upon speaking to her husband immediately. Uneasily Star realized that tonight would add fuel to the flames.

"Now what?" Clifford asked. "Have you seen a ghost?"

"No! Just some one I was surprised to see."

"I saw her look at you, then leave. Who is it?"

Star shook her head.

"I can't tell you that. You are too curious. Come on, Clifford dear, let's dance."

The next day as Star sat in the room leading into her employer's office, Mrs. Wood appeared without notice She did not even glance at Star as she swished by, but the secretary missed no detail of the black taffeta suit, the ultramodern hat and shoes, the wispy blouse and velvety gloves. Perfume followed her like a ghost

The door was open. Milton Wood cried, "Well, my dear, this is a surprise!"

Star heard Jennifer purr, "Good morning, darling!" as the door closed.

The girl at the desk continued typing, but when she removed the paper from her machine she saw that it was strewn with mistakes. Her hands were shaking. Her lips quivered. Mrs. Wood had acted as if she were not even there. After what she had seen the night before, Star was frightened. She did not doubt that it would be war between them from now on And how could she fight against her employer's wife?

Star felt certain that Jennifer would do her best to have her discharged Milton knew how much Star's position meant to her, but after hearing the previous conversation on the subject of the mink cape, Star suspected that he was too easily influenced by this beautiful woman who bore his name. What would he answer if she demanded that he discharge the new secretary?

It seemed longer than it really was before the lady reappeared When she did, her glance swept the girl at the desk contemptuously. Jennifer spoke casually, cruelly.

"Good morning!" she said, as if Star were the dust beneath her feet.

Star replied courteously. For a moment she thought Mrs. Wood was going to say more, but evidently she changed her mind. A subtle smile crossed her face, then she went on her way. Star put a fresh sheet of paper in her machine and tried to concentrate but the other woman's expression still leered in her mind. With a sense of disaster, she listened for the sound of the buzzer.

She answered it with her heart pounding against her ribs.

Milton Wood looked at her quizzically.

"Sit down, please," he said. He waited a moment as if uncertain how to proceed, then asked, "Star, what have you done to make my wife dislike you?"

Color flamed into her cheeks.

"Nothing intentionally, Mr. Wood."

"I'm sure of that," he said kindly. "I thought at first I wouldn't mention it to you, but the whole thing seems so ridiculous there must be some explanation In the three years we have been married I have never known Mrs. Wood to make a complaint against any one in the office Now she tells me that you have been rude to her"

Star's eyes met his in despair

"Perhaps I shouldn't have told you about it," he went on "But I can't imagine your being rude to any one Certainly not to her"

"What did she say I did?" she faltered

"She said you were unpleasant to her over the telephone Then last night you happened to meet at a night club She was with a party of friends and you had been drinking She says you insulted her . .'

Star rose from her chair

"Do you believe that?" she asked furiously

"Sit down" he commanded His voice was so cold and hard it frightened her "Do you happen to remember a night not so long ago when I found you at the yacht harbor?"

Unable to speak, Star nodded

"I offered you a drink that night" Milton Wood reminded her, "but tired and desperate as you were, you refused You told me you had never taken a drink in your life" He leaned forward, gazing into her troubled face "You meant that, didn't you? You haven't changed since then?"

"No," she said sadly, "I haven't changed"

"That's what I thought," he assured her. "But what I can't understand is what my wife has against you Can you tell me anything definite?"

PRINCE TO WED

Rumor Says Carol's Son Trying to Choose Between Twins.

(By Associated Press)

BUCHAREST—Now that Crown Prince Mihai has come of age, all Rumanians are speculating on who will be chosen as his wife and as their future queen

Nothing has been disclosed by the royal family, but persons close to the court believe King Carol is seriously considering the twin daughters of his cousin, Prince Frederick Victor, head of the house of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen.

Some of the more romantically-inclined folk of Bucharest say Carol has suggested that Mihai take his pick of the twins and that the prince is studying their photographs, unable to make up his mind. The choice is a hard one, the story goes, since both princesses are very lovely.

Mihai is his father's heir, but not his eldest son Carol has a 20-year-old son, legitimate but morganatic, living in France This is Alexander, the son of Zizi Lambrinu, with whom Carol eloped during the World war and whom he married in Odessa

BRITAIN DRAWS UPON MALAYA'S 'DOLLAR DEPOT'

U. S. Money For Rubber and Tin Vital to War Chest For Allies.

(By United Press)

SINGAPORE—Malaya has become the "dollar arsenal" of the British Empire as well as its chief source of tin and rubber, Dr T H Silcock, professor of economics at Raffles college, declared recently in an outline of this area's contribution to the Allied war-chest

Every day, on the average, British Malaya contributes at least 100,000 pounds sterling in American dollars to the empire's foreign exchange war-chest, providing funds with which to purchase American-made munitions and airplanes.

Tin and rubber—vital necessities to the Allied war machine—also are vital to America, and from American purchases of these necessities flow the American dollars which London cherishes

Malaya Called Arsenal.

"Every country in the empire," Dr Silcock declared, "has its distinctive task, and Malaya is the arsenal for the supply of a vital modern weapon, foreign exchange

"Without this foreign exchange, and particularly without American dollars, the empire might find itself short of its most modern and most powerful implements of war those supplied by the United States, the greatest neutral power

"To get American dollars we sell more than we purchase from the United States — and the profits from this make us a treasure house for the Allies.

Canada Sells More.

"Of all the countries trading with the United States, only Canada normally sells it more than we do But Canada buys heavily, while Malayan purchases from America are relatively small.

"In 1938, not a particularly favorable year, our sales to America exceeded our purchases by more than $6,000,000 a month."

Figures for last year show that Malaya has a favorable balance of trade with America of at least $12,000,000 a month Last year total shipments of rubber (including re-exports) from Malaya were 553 324 tons, of which the United States purchased 299,816 tons. Shipments of tin amounted to 82,089 tons of which the United States used 56,796 tons

MOSCOW —(INS)— Bookshelves with an aggregate length of 120 miles which can accommodate 12,000,000 books are provided by five new blocks which have been added to the old building of the Lenin library, the imposing state library of the U. S. S. R. which stands opposite the Kremlin.

The new buildings, where 15 reading halls will seat 1,600 readers simultaneously, have been necessitated by the rapid increase in the number of readers, says the official Tass agency.

The Lenin library already contains over 10,000,000 books. It has 68,000 permanent readers last year and lent 3,500,000 books.

SAYS ABSOLUTE STATE MAKING MAN A SLAVE

Forum Lecturer Holds France, Britain as Dictatorial as Nazi Germany.

Mankind the world over is either a total slave for the government or rapidly becoming a slave under the expanding authority of the absolute state, Dr. Matthew M. McMahon asserted in the third of a series of "Open Forum" lectures at the Mansfield-Leland hotel ballroom last evening.

Professor of government at DeSales college, Toledo, Dr. McMahon spoke on "Government—Absolute or Limited?" The "Open Forum" series which will be continued Monday, March 25, is being sponsored by Catholic societies of Mansfield.

The Toledoan's address was largely concerned with the basis for the justification of absolutism and the rejection of this philosophy which claims the state is the creator and guarantor of the rights of man and that it is unlimited in its political authority.

"Absolutism means that the state is the source and creator of all rights and that the government can do anything with no limitations whatsoever on its actions affecting the private lives of its citizens," Dr. McMahon said.

He contended that the liberal democracies, France and Great Britain are as absolute and authoritarian as is Nazi Germany today.

Likens It to Claims of Kings.

"The philosophy of the rights of man based on the natural law of self-preservation is the resurrected and camouflaged claim of the divine rights of kings," he said.

"No world power admits the philosophy of government called Christian democracy as far as we can judge by the political activities.

"Modern governments, controlled by secret forces and selfish groups lusting for more power and more wealth, are now claiming the authority and powers of God Almighty."

Dr. McMahon then pointed out how the rights of the individual, the family, labor and the church are observed in both law and practice in Ireland and Portugal.

"The new Irish constitution recites what we call the Bill of Rights, but the first principle underlying this constitution in its own words is, 'The state acknowledges that the homage of public worship is due to Almighty God'," he added.

"In Portugal the capitalistic idea that labor is a commodity, to be bought and sold according to a market value, is utterly rejected. Labor is dignified and reflects a spiritual tone which industrial capitalism never can achieve on the basis of materialism."

The speaker asserted that Pope Pius XII in his first encyclical condemned absolutism as one of the two great errors of today responsible for the present "international anarchy," the other being Godlessness.

"The church does not profess to teach the establishment of a political and economic utopia on earth," Dr. McMahon said. "Her prime concern is to teach the principles of justice and charity as the guiding stars of both men and states."

He asserted that without the principles of justice and charity a peace plan ending the present war and setting up a world federation, or even a United States of Europe, "is a peace plan which all men must fear."

The fourth lecture in the "Open Forum" series is scheduled for March 25 with Dr. I. T. Kelly of DeSales college speaking on "Where Are We Going?"

Skating Trio and Director

The Lewis Trio of roller skaters, which made its debut as a professional group Saturday night at Latrobe, Pa., is made up of Lloyd, (left), Alice, and Robert Lewis., with their father, shown at the rear, as their trainer and director. The children are the three youngest of a family of eight. The Lewis' reside at 50 Pleasant avenue.

YOUTHFUL MANSFIELD SKATERS MAKE THEIR PROFESSIONAL BOWS

On the program of a theater in Latrobe, Pa., Saturday night there appeared the name of the Lewis Skating Trio. Very few persons there knew that the little act was making its debut in the entertainment world.

The trio is an all-Mansfield product and its second professional appearance will be at the Coliseum here Sunday, March 17.

Fred Lewis and his wife, Hazel, 50 Pleasant avenue, have eight children, which is a lot of children in any man's family, but there isn't any problem as to the three youngest children's recreation. They found entertainment in roller skating and it has developed into the first stages of a career.

Lewis began skating with the three children about 18 months ago and it was so much fun that they did it every day. And after awhile they got good at it and mastered so many stunts that Lewis conceived the idea of a family act.

The children in the trio are Robert, 11, Lloyd, 8; and Alice 6. They skate every night in a room in their home, but their work is confined to the small area of a six foot square platform.

One of their most ticklish stunts is one in which Robert swings Lloyd by his feet with his head so close to the floor that the latter lights a match held in his mouth by striking it against the floor. In another he crawls through a tennis racquet while being swung by his brother. Alice adds the "feminine touch" and a necesary bit of glamor while learning the technique.

The father works in the act in order to relieve Robert, but plans to drop out of it except as director when Robert is a little older. They plan to go on a tour this summer.

The Lewis' came to Mansfield in 1922 and the father is employed at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company. He has been roller skating most of his life, not to entertain others but to please himself.

The oldest of the Lewis children is a son, 26 years old.

PEACE MEANS AN ALLIED REBUFF

MacKenzie Says End of Finn War Would Be Triumph for Adolf Hitler.

est, gamest military campaigns of history, they have repeatedly appealed for assistance.

Finland got some help, but not nearly enough. Finally, when the Reds have cracked the western end of the Mannerheim line and the Finns are in desperate straits, Herr Hitler steps in and clamps on the screws for peace. He does this to safeguard himself—not to aid Finland.

Only at this 11th hour have the Allies begun to clutch at their opportunity as it is slipping from their reach. British Premier Chamberlain declares in the house of commons that the Allies are ready "to proceed immediately and jointly to the help of Finland" with "all available resources" if the Finns ask for further aid.

The premier refused to say whether Britain was "proposing to send troops to Finland" and if so whether the government was "preparing to violate the neutrality of Norway and Sweden in doing so."

It is true that Swedish neutrality has stood in the way of the movement of organized bodies of troops across that country to the aid of Finland. But if the Allies can move "all available resources" to Finland now, they likely could have found a way two months ago.

If the Finns do make peace, thereby ending the opportunity of opening up an Allied front in the Baltic area, it will not represent a catastrophe to Britain and France. They will survive it. But it will be a serious blow to them, nevertheless, and by the same token a boost for Hitler.

CHISOX SEEK ALLEN

CHICAGO —(INS)— The Chicago White Sox have opened negotiations to purchase Pitcher Johnny Allen of Cleveland, on whom the Indians have asked waivers, the Chicago Herald-American said today.

Nope, It's Not Fall, But Tygers Launch Work for 1940 Grid Schedule

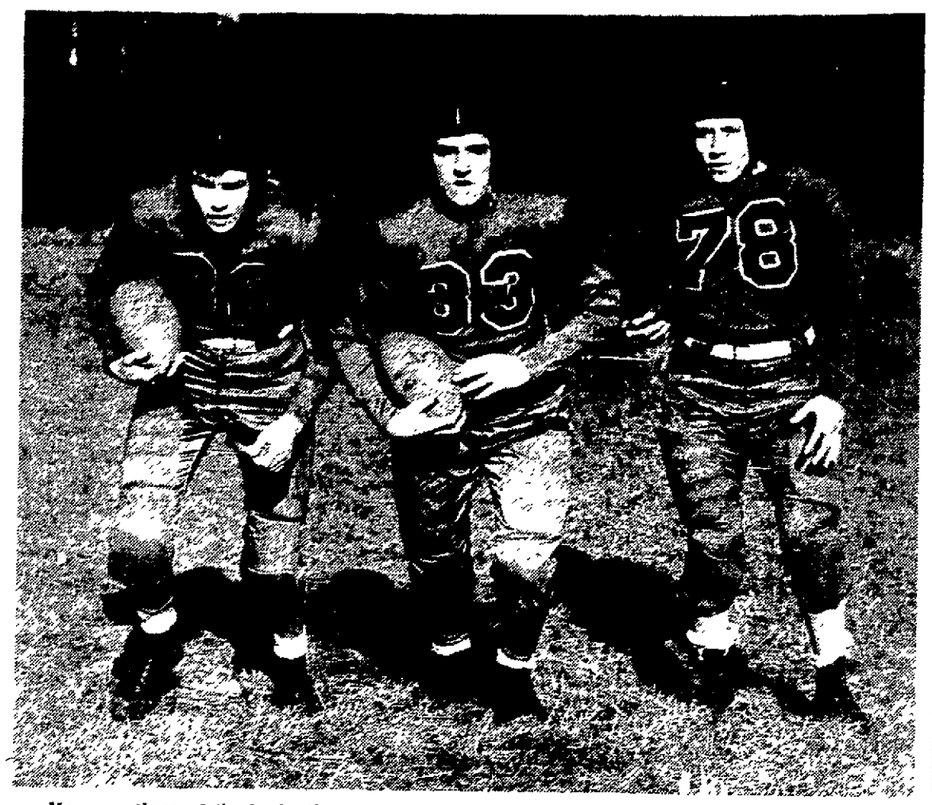
Preparations for the 1940 Mansfield high school football season got under way yesterday when Coach Paul Snyder launched "spring" drills at Empire field. A squad of 60 candidates reported to the Tyger mentor. One of the line combinations used in yesterday's opening drill is shown in the above photo. They are, left to right: Morton Frankel, Joe Horvath, George Murray, Dick Wendland, Paul Dietzel, Ken Smith and Ed Sheets.



Here are three of the backs that Snyder is counting on heavily for next fall. They are, left to right, Jim Templeton, Bill Doolittle and Ed Kinkel, who saw some service in utility roles last year.

Here's another combination of promising halfbacks: Elroy Jones, Addie Brandt, Earl Garnes and Ted Bare.

New Philly Is Choice On Record

Quakers Boast Best Marks of Any Team in Class A Tourney Division.

By JOHN H. COLBURN.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— If there's anything to this "third time's the charm" adage, New Philadelphia stands a good chance of winning its first Ohio Class A cage title.

If championships were decided on form—which they usually aren't—H. R. Townsend, high school athletic commissioner, could quit fretting about the state tournament here Thursday, Friday and Saturday and ship the gold-plated trophies to New Philly in Class A and Smithfield, Jefferson county, in Class B.

They have the best records of the 16 teams in each division and New Philadelphia has beaten four of the other Class A contenders. New Philadelphia, along with Akron Buchtel and Findlay, is in the tourney for the third consecutive year.

The pressure of 44 games in three days usually causes several form upsets and that's why the 30 teams besides the two favorites will be coming to this year's 18th annual classic for more than just the ride.

New Philly's black and gold cagers built up an average point advantage of 14.6 in winning 21 straight games, while Smithfield's edge was 22.7 in annexing 29 games without a loss.

* * *

Two other undefeated Class A teams, Cincinnati Woodward 20-0, and Canton McKinley 19-0, and Defiance 21-1, also will be definite threats for top honors. Woodward's average advantage over opponents has been 13.9, McKinley's 13.6 and Defiance's 13.4.

Here are the teams as they are paired for the tournament with their offensive and defensive records.

Johnny Allen Signs At 'His Own Figures.'

FORT MYERS, Fla. — (U P) — Johnny Allen, right-handed hurler, had signed his 1940 contract with the Cleveland Indians at "his own figure," according to President Alva Bradley.

His coming to terms left Frankie Pytlak the Indians' only holdout today.

The club had offered Allen a bonus contract, but he preferred a straight player agreement and was accepted at the figure he set, Bradley said. The terms were not disclosed.

Play Title Games In Church Loops

Championship playoff contests in the Church Class A and B leagues will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday night, Don Cram, physical director, announced today.

First Congregational and First Presbyterian tangle at 7 p. m. for the Class B title, while the Park Avenue Baptist and Mayflower clubs tangle an hour later for Class A honors.

Glover Anxious to Stop Brush In Top Bout Wednesday Night

Mansfielder Seeking First Victory Since His Defeat In Chicago Golden Gloves Tourney.

By CHARLES MARTIN

ANXIOUS to climb back into the victory column following his unexpected defeat in the Chicago Golden Gloves tournament, Beauford Glover, Mansfield's leading lightweight, will turn loose his dynamite punches Wednesday night in the feature bout in the Friendly House's first amateur fight show of the year.

Glover waded through the Cleveland Golden Gloves classic in impressive fashion to win the 135-pound open championship and then fell victim of a close decision in his first bout at Chicago.

It'll probably be the last time Mansfield boxing fans will see Glover in action before he joins the Cleveland team to invade Boston early in April for the national A. A. U. tourney.

* * *

His opponent in the five-round bout is Tony Brush of Cleveland. It may develop into a torrid setto. Brush, although he failed to advance far in the Cleveland classic, has defeated Jerry Flemia, another Clevelander. Flemia lost to Glover in the Lake city finals. Both won by decisions.

This bout, however, may not contain the thrills of two other five-round battles.

Jake Zacharias, one of the finest middleweights developed in this district in recent years, tangles with Bert Smith of Cleveland, and Paul Carbetta, 112, who holds numerous titles in the north central Ohio district, takes on Carl Netzel, 115, Cleveland.

Mike Getz, Cleveland trainer, who is bringing five lads to Mansfield for the settlement card, regards Netzel as his top fighter.

While he lacks experience, Getz believes the boy will give Carbetta all he cares to handle in a five-round match.

Smith has won 28 fights in 38 matches, some of his victories registered over top-notch Cleveland mittsters.

Smith is a crowd pleaser and Zacharias has always been willing to mix it up plenty. This should be an interesting bout.

Ted Earan will provide the opposition for Al Sauer in the top three-round melee. Earan and Sauer have participated in about nine fights and the bout will probably go at full speed for the three rounds.

John Emerson, Mansfield.

meets Gene Wertman of Ashland, Ray Howman, Ashland, faces Ted Herth of Cleveland and Joe Carbetta makes his first ring appearance against an Ashland lad in the other three-round heats.

A group of youngsters, all under 15 years, and members of the Friendly House boxing classes, open the program with three short bouts. Six lads will do the fighting.

King Seabiscuit Rited By Owner

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — The racing days of the gallant Seabiscuit are ended. He ran his last, and greatest, race when he captured the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap March 2. The king is now retired.

A brief, but formal, announcement yesterday by wealthy Charles S. Howard, the owner, wrote finis to the career of this turf idol. Seabiscuit, he said, will race no more.

Seabiscuit, said Mr. Howard, simply, has earned retirement. His purse winning record of $137,730, set in the triumph of the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, will stand until another, but never a more gallant, champion comes along.

Church League Closes Tonight

The Church Class C teams will wind up their regular season tonight with a four-game program on the Y. M. C. A. hardwood.

Extend Deadlines to File Entries in Cage Tourney.

Deadline for teams seeking to enter in the Junior basketball tournament to be held at the Friendly House March 18, 19, 20, has been extended until Wednesday, Mike Wentz, tournament manager, said today. Entries were to have closed last night. Seven clubs have entered the affair. They are Daley's Juniors, the Junior Optimist, St. Edward's and Comets of Ashland, Rex Juniors, Ontario Boy Scouts and the Boston Market. Wentz announced he expected at least 15 teams to be in by Wednesday. Boys 15 years and under are eligible to play in the tourney.

Lexington Courtmen Hear Mehock and Hoffman.

Approximately 60 members and guests attended the basketball banquet staged by the Lexington Men's Service club for the Lexington high team in the school cafeteria last night.

Harry Mehock, athletic director of Mansfield public schools, and Vern Hoffman Tyger cage coach, were the principal speakers. Mehock told of the important things players learn from the game which they can put to good use in later life.

Ralph Lutz, state representative from Richland county, Harry Maxwell of Lexington, Sherman Wentz of Mansfield, manager of the Lexington branch of the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank, and Charles Martin, News-Journal sports writer, gave brief talks.

Coach John Reese, presented letters to Bill Shaffer, Harold Robinson, Paul Wagner, manager, Orlin Hoover, Sheldon Dillon, Nelson Reel and Wilbur Wade. Shaffer and Robinson are the only seniors.

W. A. Wickline, Lexington high superintendent, was the toastmaster. Clark Robinson, club president, conducted a brief business meeting and introduced Wickline. The players gave Reese a present.

Need Victory To Cinch Title

A victory over the Rex Billiards at the Friendly House Thursday night will give the Isaly Dairy quintet the second half title in the Senior Class A league and will send it into a playoff with the Racmelton Farms, first half winners, for the circuit championship.

* * *

The Dairymen have cinched a share of the crown and tangle with the Billiards in the opening game at 6:45 o'clock.

* * *

Daley's Cafe and the Augustine Canfields clash in the middle affair and Racmelton and the Moose Lodge club wind up the regular season in the last contest.

CINCINNATI PAIR GAINS A. B. C. DOUBLES LEAD

DETROIT — (UP) — A doubles team from Cincinnati and Anthony Rudcki of Chicago in the all-events were new leaders today in the American Bowling Congress.

In their second appearance at the huge state fairgrounds coliseum, Harold Burkhardt and Eddie Lilleman of Cincinnati rolled their team total to 1236. Rudcki's series of 557 gave him top standing in the all-events.

LISTS OHIO TEAM

MEADVILLE, Pa. — (AP) — Allegheny college's 12-game basketball schedule for 1940-41 lists three opponents from Ohio—Oberlin, Penn and Hiram. The Gators won 12 out of 15 games this season.

IN THE RUHL BOOK

By OSCAR RUHL

News-Journal Sports Editor.

THE hardest working player in the Cincinnati training camp is Ernie Lombardi, the goat of the world's series, according to the Associated Press' Gayle Talbot.

As game as he is big, Ernie wears the expression these days of a man who intends to make his detractors eat their words.

The slugging catcher never has made the slightest effort to explain what happened to him in that ludicrous climax to the big series, when the Yankees bounced him around like a rubber ball. The most he has said was: "I don't know what happened."

Probably that is the literal truth, but it would have been easy for him to have said that Keller knocked the wind from him when they collided at the plate, and that he was a hurt man for the remainder of the dizzy game. That has come to be the popular theory, yet Lombardi has done nothing to foster it.

Now he still is nursing his own thoughts, and working like a rookie. Already he has caught two full inter-camp games, one of which went 12 innings. A teammate confided that Ernie was at least two weeks ahead of last spring in his conditioning, and said he would be willing to bet Ernie was coming back to hit at least .320.

Last year was bad for him all around. National League batting champion in 1938 with a mark of .342, and voted the league's most valuable player, he hit only .286 last season.

You've Got to Fight In Pennsylvania.

YOU'VE got to fight, if you want to enter the ring professionally in Pennsylvania; but at the same time, you can't go around socking the customers.

The Pennsylvania Athletic commission made that clear when it slapped penalties on a boxer and a wrestler.

At the one extreme, it found, was Joe Wagner of Cleveland. Commissioner George J. Jones, jr., said Wagner "waltzed" through a boxing match with Gus Doranzio of Philadelphia at Wilkes-Barre. The puglist drew a six-months suspension.

* * *

On the other hand, Sammy Cohen was barred from wrestling in the Keystone State for 30 days because, Jones said, the grappler took a poke at a fan after he climbed out of the ring at Harrisburg.

Madigan Loses Job

St. Mary's Board Refuses to Renew Contract of Veteran Gridiron Coach.

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Edward P. (Slip) Madigan, who raised St. Mary's college from obscurity to national prominence on football gridirons, was out of his 18-year coaching job today by order of the college athletic board, the reason undisclosed.

The board decided yesterday not to renew Madigan's contract when it expires March 31, 1941.

Madigan, who came to St. Mary's in 1921 when the college had 71 students, could not be reached. Calls to his home in Oakland brought only the response that he was "out."

J. Philip Murphy, chairman of the St. Mary's board of athletic control, announced the body not only voted to end Madigan's services, but that he would not coach the 1940 team, either in spring practice or during the fall season.

The spring practice will be handled by Norman P. "Red" Strader, assistant coach, mentioned in some quarters as a possible successor to the retiring coach.

Speculation surrounding the board's action centered on the health of Madigan, who has been ill several months with a stomach ailment, and the fact St. Mary's 1939 season was somewhat dismal. The Gaels won three games, lost four and tied one.

* * *

Reports that Madigan might withdraw from the coaching picture and submit to an operation have been current for some time, and last week there were rumors that he would be ousted. Chairman Murphy denied the latter and said the board had no intention of replacing Madigan.

OSHKOSH DRAWS FIRST BLOOD IN CAGE SERIES

OSHKOSH, Wis.—(AP)—The Oshkosh All Stars, western division champions, turned on the heat in the last quarter last night to defeat the Akron Firestones, eastern division winners, 47 to 37 in the first clash of the five-game playoff for the National pro basketball league championship.

Pitching Fails to Hold Up in Spring Training Games; Hitters Do Well.

By JOHN FRYE

CINCINNATI —(AP)— "What," demands the multitude on the banks of the Ohio, "the blankety blank is going on down there?

Being tried and true students of the academic as well as emotional side of baseball, Cincinnati fans know perfectly well that games in the citrus circuit don't cut any ice when the great book is closed in October. Just the same, their beloved Reds, champions of the National League and technically only four games off the world championship, have lost every single day they've gone out to play ball so far this spring and that's four days.

The devil of it is that two of the losses have been by one run and two games have gone extra innings, and the second game, 11 to 10, in 12. The Red Sox had the third, 13 to 10, and the New York Yankees (yes, the same ones as done it before) downed the Reds yesterday, 8 to 7.

* * *

Losing to Brooklyn had some alibi, for the Trolley Dodgers had been training two weeks longer. But the Red Sox threw a batch of damp-cared children at the Reds and the Yankees managed to get along without Joe DiMaggio.

It hasn't been the hitting. The Reds blasted out 48 safeties in the four days, and scored 33 runs. The fielding with six errors in all, wasn't so bad, considering the "unusual weather."

So it boils down to the pitching and the breaks and both ought to cancel out between the Reds and the opposition. So far Manager Bill McKechnie has seen just two men, Paul Derringer and Gene Thompson, really pitching. The rest of the staff has walked a score of men and passed out hits like Christmas candy.

Now, be it granted that nobody's really loosened up yet. Be it granted that the Reds annually won the grapefruit championship in the years when they couldn't get out of second division.

* * *

But ask your Red fan to take a discount on that. A ball game's a ball game to him and a victory—grapefruit or the McCoy—is negotiable currency in his world of fancy. So when the score comes in he howls:

"What the blankety-blank is going on down there?"

CUT HALTS BOUT

CINCINNATI—(AP)—A cut Tom Kenneally, Chicago fighter, received in training forced cancellation of his scheduled 10-round bout here tomorrow night with Jack (Buddy) Walker, Columbus Negro. Promoter Bob Evans announced.

Two More Players Sign With Mansfield Braves.

The signed players on the roster of the Mansfield Braves were increased by two more yesterday with the announcement by President Joe C. Hartline that George Laurilla of Newberry, Mich., and Martin Pistovich have inked contracts.

Laurilla was a member of the Braves' hurling staff last season, while Pistovich is a newcomer. The latter is also a righthander.

Wrestling Show Ends In Near Riot

JIMMY HEFFNER of the Texas Heffners, subs brought on a near riot last night at the Armory . . . but only, as he got to be was defending his honor against Hitler's henchman Heine the Hun at Tim Nolan's Quality chi wrestling show.

* * *

And only because Referee Clarence Miller insisted that Heffner, not Heine, was down in the third and final fall was the Southern gentleman denied getting vengeance for the dirty work perpetrated by Heine the Heel.

* * *

And sub it was only he was the fans were a little wi their rights that Heine is also to say to tell about it. As the G man left the ring three fans ed him. He threw them off. Others joined in. They got him was that safe for all Heine down. He threw 'em off. . . . mon from the fans, who ake . . . going.

. . . master for the dressing room . . . around Miller's life.

The Hun won the first fall not . . . you might imagine because he . . . down Heffner for locking . . . by insisted on knocking . . . down Referee Clarence Miller with . . . last. Four times he hoisted Miller to the canvas because he figured he wasn't getting a square deal. Mulled, Miller crawled to the ringside Hun, gave him the nod.

Nothing the second fall was original. Jimmy came out whipped the German on the Over Slammed for Straight Wo with an Indian chokehold. An Miller had to pry Heffner away.

The final was a beaut, too. In true Southern style you know . . . kick the stuffing out of them . . . Heffner gave Heine the works. Jimmy got careless, though, and Heine got him in a position . . . ed him. Referee Miller counted Heffner out and gave . . . Heine's hand was raised in victory.

PEACE TALKS HOLD INTEREST IN STOCK MART

Prices, However, Up Fractions; Foreign Markets Improved in Light Dealings.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—With their interest centered on Finnish soviet peace talks, traders pushed stock prices slightly higher today.

The market was hesitant, but fractional rises were in the majority.

Bonds gained a trifle. Commodities were irregular. Foreign markets improved in light dealings.

Wall Street prognosticators followed the Moscow peace negotiations with the closest attention, seeking to determine whether Prime Minister Chamberlain's promise of aid to Finland would be followed by action widening the theater of European war. It was held by some that a Finnish peace on soviet terms might be interpreted as a strategic diplomatic victory for Hitler, since it would remove the danger of an allied thrust at Germany through Russia.

At the Theaters

One of the most famous Colonial homes of American history and one of the best examples of Georgian architecture in the United States, the Tulip Hill home built in Maryland in 1745 by Samuel Galloway, was recently reproduced on a sound stage for the Eddie Cantor picture, "Forty Little Mothers" . . . Mickey Rooney and Bette Davis have been crowned "King and Queen of the Movies" by Columnist Ed Sullivan representing the Chicago Tribune and New York Daily News Syndicate annual popularity voting contest.

Historical Filmization.

Filmed in technicolor "Northwest Passage" which is showing at the Ohio theater, is the result of two years of careful planning. The story is one of courage, fortitude and almost superhuman physical triumph. Spencer Tracy as Major Rogers takes his hardy Rangers, including Robert Young and Walter Brennan, on a secret mission to wipe out a village of marauding Indians. Thus starts a thrilling journey, across a river torrent by forming a human chain, staging a harrowing battle with the Indans and then battering their way back home.

Stage and Film Shows.

Opening Wednesday at the Madison theater will be the stage presentation "Hollywood Variety Revels" which co-stars Judy Starr, who has appeared in many musical films, on the radio and with the noted orchestras; Donald Novis, famous tenor of the stage, screen and radio, "Mousie" Powell and his mad-cats orchestra; and many others of note in the musical world. The film showing at that time will be "Parole Fixer," based on J. Edgar Hoover's "Persons in Hiding." Virginia Dale and Richard Denning play the leads.

Old Vienna.

"The Great Waltz," glamorous musical drama based on the life of Johann Strauss, recreates the romance of old Vienna at the Majestic theater where it will be playing Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, with Luise Rainer and Fernand Gravet heading a large cast. The Imperial Opera, the palace of Emperor Franz Josef, Vienna during the Metternich revolution, the Vienna woods, are elaborate details in the picture. A 90-piece symphony orchestra accompanies the Viennese singer Miliza Korjus in opera and other musical sequences. The co-feature is "Five Came Back."

Fight Film Shown.

Showing at the Ritz on Wednesday and Thursday will be the official fight film of the Louis vs. Godoy fight, and "Dancing Co-Ed" with Lana Turner and Richard Carlson in the leads. Two hundred jitterbugs, personally selected by Artie Shaw, act as an animated background for Miss Turner in a story of college life as it might be when a Hollywood press agent sends a vaudeville hoofer to a university with the sole purpose of winning a dance contest.

Mexican Sequel.

Depicting in hilarious fashion the further hectic adventures of a Latin entertainer in New York, "Mexican Spitfire," a romantic comedy, staring Lupe Velez, opens Wednesday at the Park theater. A sequel to the recent "Girl from Mexico" the film presents Lupe as the bride of a dignified advertising man. On their return from a honeymoon the groom learns that a British baron is waiting to complete a big deal with him. Many complications follow. The second feature is "The Invisible Killer" with Grace Bradley and Roland Drew.

PROOF-TESTING OF PNEUMONIA VACCINE URGED

Cincinnati Seen as Spearhead in Campaign to Test Out New Treatment.

(By United Press)

CINCINNATI—The first cross-section test of a new vaccine against pneumonia is expected to be made here by the U. S. Public Health Service soon.

The Cincinnati Academy of Medicine has proposed that at least 15,000 persons here be inoculated with the vaccine and health officials are known to be in favor of it.

The experiment would take two years and if it proved the vaccine actually a success, Cincinnati probably would become the spearhead of a nationwide attack on the deadly disease.

Six years ago Cincinnati physicians, working without publicity, succeeded in typing the various kinds of pneumonia. They found 32 specific forms, which enabled the scientists to develop serums for treatment of specific types. Until that time it had been supposed that all kinds of pneumonia were caused by one germ.

Cases Closely Checked.

Since 1934 the General Hospital Clinic and private laboratories have been utilized for further experiment. Close tab was kept on all pneumonia cases.

The pneumonia mortality rate was enormous six years ago, ranging from 35 to 50 per cent of all cases treated at General hospital here. Type 1 pneumonia, the technical name for the most prevalent of the 32 types, caused most of the fatalities.

Most laymen are familiar with the symptoms of type one—a neglected cold, then a chill, a pain in the chest, high fever, difficulty in breathing.

Pneumonia control began in earnest in Cincinnati with the discovery of a curative serum. Scientists killed pneumonia germs and fed them to horses. The horses soon developed protective bodies against the disease.

This same treatment was used to fight pneumonia in human beings. Big laboratories kept horses immunized against all 12 types as supply sources for the serum.

It formerly required 7 to 14 days to pass the "crisis" period. The new serum cut it to three days. The Cincinnati death rate declined to 10 per cent.

Sulphapyridine Also Used.

Scientists recently discovered that the new drug, sulphapyridine, also could be used effectively. It can be taken orally, while the first serum is injected. Sulphapyridine is more economical.

One of These May Be Next 'First Lady' of U. S.

One of these three women may be the next "first lady" of the United States. Left to right, the women are Mrs. Thomas E. Dewey, Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg and Mrs. Robert A. Taft, all wives of Republican presidential hopefuls. Their husbands are the three leading G. O. P. candidates.

SAVED IN VAIN

HUTCHINSON, Kan.—(AP)—The starling with a broken leg which Homer Christner befriended and nursed back to health just couldn't stand prosperity. Christner reports the bird ate himself to death on the Christner larder, more abundant than nature's in winter.

ADDS MODELS

Westinghouse to Build Two New Ranges for 1940 Line.

Addition of two new range models to the Westinghouse 1940 line was announced today by R. M. Beatty, manager of the range and water heater department of Westinghouse's merchandising division.

One of the new models, the Chieftain, is designed to meet the demand for a range fully skirted to the floor in the $100 price class, Beatty said.

This model is a divided top range, with three five-speed Corox units, a five-speed Economy Cooker, and an oven, with single dial control.

The other new model, the new Diplomat, is a full-sized range with three storage drawers and will list at about $30 higher.

MAKE IT TWO

If Tourists Want Prairie Dog Towns, He's Got 'Em.

LYONS, Kans.—(AP)—A hint is all that it takes to start Paul Jones, head of the Kansas Coronado anniversary festivities, a celebration planned for next summer. A Pennsylvanian wrote in and said he would come if he could see a prairie dog town. So Jones plans to mark three such towns along the main highways and to erect signs inviting tourists to "shoot 'em if you can."

Resolution Condemns Census Questions on Earnings

COMMITTEE VOTES 9 TO 7 ON PROPOSAL

Would Ask Bureau to Delete Queries Regarding Personal Income.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The senate commerce committee approved, 9 to 7, today a resolution suggesting that questions regarding personal income be deleted from the 1940 census.

The committee approved the proposal, sponsored by Senator Tobey (R., N. H.), after rejecting a milder substitute suggested by Senator Maloney (D., Conn.).

Tobey's resolution would express "the sense of the senate" that the income questions should not be asked. Maloney suggested a resolution suggesting that the census bureau "reconsider" the queries and that it be "authorized" to eliminate them if it thought advisable. Maloney's proposal was defeated by a vote of 9 to 8.

Chairman Bailey (D., N. C.) of the commerce committee said he did not know whether the census bureau would eliminate the questions as a result of the committee's action.

He asserted that the Tobey proposal would be reported to the senate today, and that it then would be a question of gaining consideration for it on the floor.

Tobey has been anxious to obtain prompt action because the census will begin April 1. Unless the questions are eliminated before that date they will be asked by census takers.

The questions regarding income follow:

"Amount of money wages or salary received (including commissions)? (1939.)

"Did this person receive income of $50 or more from sources other than money wages or salary? (1939.)"

Says U. S. Found Curtailed Freedom Hurt Prosperity

Until democracy is more clearly defined, and better understood, it should be less used in discussing American problems and world conditions, suggested Dr. Charles C. Smith, of Chicago, in a talk at today's meeting of the Rotary club, held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, with John B. Coleman as program chairman.

Speaking on the subject, "Freedom, Our American Dynamic," Dr. Smith stressed the point that it was "freedom," and more particularly religious fredom, that inspired the early settlers of this country to leave their homelands and brave the difficulties and hardships of colonial times.

Freedom, he said, is a two-syllable word which is easily understood, while the four-syllable word, "democracy," is interpreted in a different way in every country in which it is used, being claimed even by Hitler in Germany and Stalin in Russia.

"By converting an intangible into a tangible," said Dr. Smith, "the people of the United States have been able to enjoy the economic fruits of freedom in larger degree than has been possible in any other country in the world. When you curtail freedom you hurt prosperity, as has been demonstrated in the United States in recent years."

Dr. Smith is asociated with the speakers bureau of the National Association of Manufacturers and was on the program during the convention of the State Association of Master plumbers, held in Mansfield early in February. He also spoke at an assembly meeting in the Senior high school auditorium at 10 o'clock today.

NORRIS PROPOSES MANDATORY 30 HOUR WORK WEEK FOR INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON—(INS)— Senator George W. Norris, noted Independent from Nebraska, today came out for a mandatory 30-hour work week in industry.

It was his reply, he said, to a bill introduced by Senator O'Mahoney (D) Wyoming, which would tax employers using machine power and pay a bonus to employers using man power.

Norris said O'Mahoney's bill comprised a tax on inventive genius, and asserted that "the only approach" to the unemployment problem was "compulsory reduction of the work week." He suggested congress first cut the work week to 30 hours and later to 25 and 20 hours. The Nebraska Independent predicted his stand would be opposed by many manufacurers and large planters.

Under O'Mahoney's bill, a system of tax credits would be established as an adjunct to the present income tax structure. O'Mahoney explained that employers who make "more than average" use of machine power and labor-saving devices would be assessed, while rewards "in the form of tax reductions or even wage subsidies" would be given employers who use a greater ratio of man power.

WELLES TALKS WITH BRITISH 'OPPOSITION'

Gets Views of Chamberlain's Critics, Requests Meeting With Lloyd George.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles, President Roosevelt's touring fact-finder, obtained the British opposition's view of the European war today.

Having heard the government's opinions in talks with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax, and having chatted at tea with King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, the deft American diplomat this morning received two of Chamberlain's sharpest parliamentary critics—Major Clement Attlee, Laborite parliamentary leader, and Arthur Greenwood, veteran Laborite M. P.

Welles received them at the United States embassy at 10:30 a. m. In giving Welles an opportunity to confer with the opposition leaders, the British government carried out its announced determination to permit Welles an insight into all shades of British political opinion.

When Attlee and Greenwood left the embassy after an 80-minute conversation, Attlee cryptically observed:

"We have had a most interesting talk."

At noon Welles received Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the Liberal party in parliament.

Later Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon entertained Welles at luncheon.

At the American envoy's own request, a meeting with David Lloyd George was arranged for tomorrow.

Well informed sources revealed that Chamberlain yesterday outlined with complete frankness Britain's position regarding the war to Welles, "hammering home" —as one informant put it—the points which might be the basis of a possible peace.

SNOW, SLEET DUE IN OHIO TONIGHT

Storm Held Off By High Pressure Area to Bring Mixed Weather.

Held off temporarily by a high pressure area—so the weatherman said—a storm is due to sweep into Ohio from the southwest tonight, bringing a mixture of snow, sleet and rain.

The storm has been threatening Ohio since Saturday, but a cold wave in the Great Lakes area has blocked it, the forecasters said.

The forecast was for rain mixed with sleet and snow tonight and Wednesday with rising temperatures.

Still in the grip of a late winter cold wave, Mansfield had a low reading of 12 above zero this morning.

REORGANIZATION PLAN APPROVED

Hughes-Keenan Stockholders Dismiss Receiver After All Claims Are Settled.

Under a reorganization plan, stockholders of the Hughes-Keenan company, Mansfield, met yesterday afternoon in the offices of Atty. C. H. Workman and elected five directors who then chose officers.

Officers and directors declined to permit the publication of their names, however, until "other details of the reorganization are worked out."

Officers said no immediate changes are planned in the management and operation of the Mansfield plant which makes hoists, cranes, and other heavy machinery.

The firm has been in receivership for the past six and a half years, but Receiver W. L. Althouse was dismissed after claims against the firm were settled.

A reorganization plan, drafted by C. H. Hughes, M. D. Ward, and Louis W. Olson, was approved yesterday by a majority of the stockholders.

Officers said additional stock will be issued to re-finance the company, but they withheld the amount until a later date.

THREE DAMAGE SUITS TOTALING $55,000 FILED

Maxwell Hoover Named in Two Actions Seeking to Recover $40,000.

ASHLAND — Damages of $40,000 are asked of Maxwell Hoover in two suits filed against him in common pleas court, and a judgment of $15,000 is asked of Arthur Shaffer in another suit filed by Edwin M. Danner of Polk Rd.

In the suits against Hoover, he is named as being responsible for the death of the late Kenneth McGuire, 23, in an automobile accident on route 20, four miles west of Bucyrus on February 6 of this year.

He is sued by F. M. McGuire, administrator of the estate, who asks $30,000 as damages.

In the second suit against Hoover, Elmer Wachtel asks damages of $10,000 for injuries said to have been sustained in the same accident. Hoover is charged with carelessness, negligence and driving at a high rate of speed on a slippery highway.

Danner charges in his suit that he was standing in front of his home on route 250 here on August 7, 1939 when Shaffer lost control of his car, and went off the road.

Danner contends that he was struck by Shaffer's machine, and that he sustained body injuries and bruises, including broken ribs, back and internal injuries.

Pledge of Allegiance To Flag.

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

New Child-Labor Proposal

SINCE it has become unlikely that the old child-labor constitutional amendment will ever be ratified by the required number of states to bring about its adoption, an amendment proposed by Congressman Dudley A. White merits consideration.

Congressman White's proposal would give congress power to regulate or prohibit "labor in mines, quarries, mills, workshops, factories, and manufacturing establishments of all persons under 16 years of age."

The old amendment, submitted in 1924 and thus far ratified by only 28 states, would empower congress to "limit, regulate and prohibit labor of persons under 18 years of age."

It was pointed out that the old proposal could be used to prevent a farmer's son from doing farm work until he was 18 years old and to withhold from young people many forms of employment suitable to their age and valuable as training.

The new proposal lowers the age limit to 16 years and restricts application to specified kinds of employment. It would also require that ratification by the necessary number of states be within five years—a limitation not provided by the old child-labor amendment, which has now dragged along for 16 years.

The idea of revising the child-labor amendment to remove points of special objection by some states has been discussed for a number of years, without any action having been taken. Congressman White's proposal may at least open the subject for further serious consideration by congress as to most advisable procedure.

DeMolay Chapter for Mansfield

WITH plans for the organization of a chapter of the Order of DeMolay going forward in Mansfield, under supervision of Baku Grotto, it becomes interesting to note the principles and purposes of this fraternal organization, in which boys and young men between the ages of 15 and 21 are eligible for membership.

As they look back to their own experiences through those formative years many men will realize the advantages of such influences as are intended to be provided through membership in DeMolay—an all 'round youth development in preparation for the opportunities and responsibilities of manhood.

The seven cardinal virtues of the order, around which the initiatory work is built, are: love of parents, reverence, courtesy, comradeship, fidelity, cleanliness and patriotism.

While the Order of DeMolay is under general sponsorship of the Masonic fraternity, and each chapter is directed by an advisor who is a member of the Masonic group which assumes supervision of the chapter, it is not required that an applicant for membership be either the son or a relative of a Mason—the only requirement being that applicants are within the age range and of good character.

Founded in Kansas City, Mo., in 1919, DeMolay now has approximately one thousand chapters in the United States and several foreign countries.

As the program of DeMolay is designed for youth, membership automatically ceases at the age of 21, with an impressive ceremony marking graduation into citizenship.

It was said by former Vice President Charles G. Dawes: "The teachings of the Order of DeMolay . . . love of parents, love of God, patriotism, purity, courtesy, comradeship and fidelity . . . are those which not only develop the best in youth but insure the best in man."

Those Census Questions

PEOPLE who have become accustomed to the independence and privacy which they regard as among the rights of American citizenship are complaining about some of the questions contained in the new federal census questionnaire. It appears that the ordinary householder will be questioned as thoroughly, by as insistent a questioner, as if he were asking for a bank loan or buying merchandise on the installment plan.

There is some argument as to the responsibility for this quest for information. It is natural to blame the government. Still, a Washington agency which provides governmental information for business men says this is not a case of governmental snooping, but a market survey for the benefit of all lines of business connected with building and furnishing homes.

People's memories are short. Some of the annoying questions, the home mortgage question for example, were being asked by census-takers forty years ago. And when people refused to answer, the canvasser would quietly write "mortgaged" and move on to the next victim.

Hoped for Peace Poem

EDWIN MARKHAM, the good gray poet who has just passed away at the age of 87, leaves not only some excellent poems to remember him by, but some good ideas.

He had been waiting, he said, for a poem which he hoped some younger man would write before his death. It would be "the greatest poem of all time."

"That," he explained, "would be five or six stanzas which would disperse the armies of the world. If I had the time, the youth, the strength, to write one great poem, it would be against war. If I could have one wish fulfilled, it would be for a poem that would expose the mockery, the futility, the utter sterility of war, in such a way as to warn every man who loves the world and humanity to watch vigilantly against war."

There have been great war poems, but they were poems inciting to war or celebrating the glories of past wars. May it not sometime come about that Markham's dream will come true—that there will eventually be written a poem that will inspire the world to peace?

It has again been asked: "What would you do first if someone were to give you a million dollars?"—and the correct answer probably is that you'd hand most of it over to the government.

One scientist advises reverting to the apes and walking on all fours as a cure for human ills—and the nudists might try out this further step.

Word comes that a Swedish specialist has been called to Moscow to examine Stalin's brain—which seems like a long trip for a small matter.

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Ruth Gordon just happens to be an extraordinary able actress, and when she steps off the stage she leaves the character she has portrayed behind her. But every time I see her or talk to her I think of a girl on a toboggan slide with Raymond Massey, and a huge rock at the foot of the slide, and a tragic, fumbling crash that did not kill but maimed them instead and left them embittered for life.

That was "Ethan Frome." That was Raymond Massey married to a woman he did not love and loving a woman he could not have. Ruth Gordon was the woman. They took the easy way out because they thought they could find in the after-life the thing they could not have in this life.

It didn't work out that way. They grew into crippled, bed-ridden people who despised each other and remained that way until, out of pure similty, they died.

I HAVE seen Ruth Gordon in many plays, but for me she will always be the girl on the toboggan slide. I asked her just the other day what about that play for the movies. "No," she said, "not now. They haven't any right to film 'Ethan Frome.' It's too tragic, too morbid. No one has the right to picture or portray unhappiness in times like these. What we want to do now is learn how to laugh."

"Well, did you get some laughs in Hollywood," I asked her, since only recently she went there to appear with this same Raymond Massey in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" and with Edward G. Robinson in "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet."

"Not the kind you mean," she said. "I just went out to get paid, like all the rest, but it wasn't like that at all. Charles Laughton was right when he said, 'If 20 actors sat in a room all night trying to think of the most wonderful thing in the world they still couldn't think of Hollywood, because nobody has that much imagination. It is an actor's paradise."

"You mean that?"

"YES, I do. Let's be frank. What has the theater done in the last 10 or 12 years? Not much, has it? Maybe the theater is tired. After all, the theater, as we know it, started with Shakespeare, but the movies started from nothing. They're still working up. They have a goal. The literature of the world is open to them. There isn't anything they can't do."

Well, I must admit Ruth Gordon surprised me. Most successful theater actresses look down the sides of their noses when they speak of the films. Not Miss Gordon. She is fundamentally too honest and too alert to stub her toe on this form of intellectual intolerance.

Perhaps the theater would make more progress if it awakened to the fact that, in films, it really faces a dangerous rival.

Suggestions For Friendships.

There are so many lovely folks
In this old world, why should
We bother with unpleasant ones?
Why not of fine and good

Make comrades? If you have a friend
Who always ruffles you
Why keep the friendship? Why not try
Another, gay and new?

Some like a friend to quarrel with,
And some like quiet friends
And others wish the tide that goes
To depths where love begins

Will there are many million folks,
So make your choice and bind
To you the best fit best in this,
The life you have designed.

What the Doctor Learns From Tongue.

—By DR. CLENDENING

WHAT has become of the old-fashioned practice of looking at the patient's tongue?

Good doctors still look at the tongue, although probably they do not claim to gather as much information from it as the old general practitioner who used to take the temperature, look at the tongue, feel the pulse, look at the skin and call it a day so far as physical examination was concerned.

Like everything else, practice in examination of the tongue brings out a number of things which gain in significance as they are studied. The tongue is a good organ for the household doctor or house mother to study for this reason.

The state of moisture of the tongue is fraught with important information. A dry, brown, furred tongue is of serious import, whereas the return of moisture and the disappearance of the fur indicate improvement.

Movements Important.

The movements of the tongue are of significance. The way in which it is protruded may indicate slight or marked paralysis in elderly people.

The tongue plays an important part in digestion, in mastication and also in the formulation of speech. In health it can be moved quickly or slowly in all directions, protruded straight in the middle line, maintained there and withdrawn.

In nervous people the movements of the tongue tend to be made quickly or jerkily. Weakness or exhaustion may cause the tongue to be protruded only slightly on command. In apoplexy half the tongue muscles very frequently are paralyzed so that the healthy half pushes the tongue over towards the affected side.

Tremor of the tongue, tremulousness, may be a sign of nervousness in a healthy person or weakness in an exhausted one. It is not infrequently a sign of over-indulgence in alcohol and one that cannot be concealed.

Taste Disorders.

Disturbances of taste may occur in fever, in shock and in nerve disease. In facial palsy taste is lost over the anterior two-thirds of the tongue. When the nerve of taste, the glossopharyngeal nerve, is paralyzed, loss of taste occurs over the posterior third of the tongue.

Taste is tested by using the four primary sensations — bitter, sweet, sour and salt, with solutions of quinine, sugar, vinegar and salt.

Coating of the tongue probably has not as much significance as was once believed. It usually means upset of the stomach or of the digestive tract generally. Of course a dry tongue, such as occurs in fever and shock, will be accompanied by furring.

Changes in the color of the tongue are important. The bright red, strawberry tongue of scarlet fever may be the first sign of the presence of this disease in a sick infant. The pale, smooth, bald tongue of blood diseases, such as anemia and pellagra, is an important dignostic sign.

Listen, World!

The Meaning of Motherhood.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

A WOMAN came to me today complaining of her motherhood. She likes her children, she says, but she feels they cramp her style.

She wants a career. She wants power. She wants to feel the fire of success before she dies.

So many women feel that, nowadays. So many mothers. Strange, how people will kid themselves! How people will sell themselves short!

Actually, the commonest little mother that ever lived holds more real power in her hands, has a greater chance to leave her brand on human history, than any conqueror. And instead she walks off and pouts.

* * *

RECENTLY I saw what motherhood can mean. You did not know, but while you were reading my advance copy I was down in the dark shadow, fighting Old Man Death, with only my own soul to tell me the way out.

And during that time what do you think helped me? Wealth? Power? Association with great minds and books. No—none of these things.

Only one thing helped me—the face of a tired mother which hangs on my wall by day and night.

The face of the Mother of my Christ.

Now, let's get straight about this. I'm not a religious woman, nor a church woman, nor even a very good woman. I have had to fight for my life—the tough way—and I have few illusions. But in that fight I have learned the value and blessing of two things—of courage and of understanding. And in that face on the wall, when I was most desperately ill, I saw the two things that would lead me back to life—Courage and Understanding: two things that challenged the fear in me—and dared and taunted—and led me back to life.

For I, too, have known motherhood. And dumb as I am, I know that those who enter into it must prepare to take any challenge, make any sacrifice, and find their glory in it. And even though I lost my boy I learned that mothers must never give up—for they are the really great adventurers of the race. They alone risk life, that the race may go on. They alone sacrifice their own lives, that the race may be better. And even kneeling at the foot of the cross which every true mother must face, they forget their own agony for the sake of their child, they risk all they have for that child's continuance.

And so it was when all medical science failed me . . . when love could no longer hold me here . . . when the dark wings closed about me . . . I clung to one thing only in my hope for life.

I clung to a mother.

The Mother of God.

And I whispered, "Give me back my life that I may use it as you did for those who are here, even though my heart, as yours was, is broken."

And so I'm here today—well and laughing and hitting the job on all 16 cylinders. But even as I strut my oompah-oompah stuff . . . and wise crack and kid and razz you down . . . I know that I am using a strength that was given to me.

A strength that was given to me from the dream of motherhood, from the memory of a gentle face scarred by heartbreak, but smiling through its tears. . . . . .

And I know that from her courage I drew this new chance of life.

That is what motherhood can mean. That is what motherhood was meant to be.

Timely Editorial

Labor Racketeers.

If Attorney General Jackson goes through with his projected war on union labor leaders accused of racketeering and abuse of power, he will be serving the best interests of American industrial relations. Scores of instances of abusive action are reported to have been brought to the attention of the department of justice. The plan is to attempt to end the vicious practices by application of the Sherman anti-trust act.

In several cases, the department has evidence showing that labor leaders exact personal tribute from employers. If employers do not come across with the money, the labor leaders order strikes on one pretext or another. The fact that the system is termed "strike insurance" does not minimize its racketeering character.

Certainly the government's insistence upon strict regulation and control of business and industry would seem to warrant an equally zealous crusade against the more objectionable types of predatory leadership within the ranks of organized labor. Fair play demands that racketeering sabotage of industry be punished. Newark Advocate.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Friends of dapper Stewart McDonald are wondering just how long he will be able to continue his present juggling act of keeping two balls in the air at one time. "Stew" is head of the federal housing administration and simultaneously chairman of the board of the Maryland Casualty company.

He was given the latter job by his close friend Jesse Jones, after the RFC bailed out the Maryland Casualty company. Technically, McDonald was put in this key post in order to protect the government's interests.

However, for him simultaneously to hold the major job of federal housing administrator is unique in New Deal history. It smacks of the Republican practice so frequently and loudly denounced by the Democrats, namely, putting big business moguls in key goverment jobs.

Note—Stewart McDonald also was boosted by Jesse Jones as emergency executive of Associated Gas and Electric just before it went into bankruptcy. "Stew" is now an ardent booster of Jesse Jones for president.

Faux Pas Candidate.

SEVERAL Republican colleagues were twitting Representative T. V. Smith, scholarly Illinois New Dealer, about his failure to score more impressively against Senator Bob Taft in their series of weekly radio debates last year.

"You were a big disappointment, T. V.," one of them gibed. "He certainly showed you up."

The red-headed ex-professor took the badinage good-naturedly. "Funny thing about those debates," he retorted. "Taft beat me at my own game—being homespun. By the way, how's his presidential campaign getting on?"

"Oh, he's doing all right. His stock is going up steadily every day."

"So I hear," rejoined Smith. "The old boy seems to be backing into the presidency from faux pas to faux pas."

Vandenberg's Japs.

SENATOR VANDENBERG privately is very uneasy over the unfavorable effect upon his presidential campaign of his clamor for aggressive action against Japan.

He is so concerned that he summoned his regional managers to Washington for a secret powwow. Their advice was that he should soft-pedal the issue for two reasons:

(1) The inconsistency, to the public, of his denouncing Roosevelt's appeal of the arms embargo as a war move, and at the same time demanding a war-like policy toward Japan; and (2) complaints by GOP leaders that Vandenberg played into the hands of the Democrats by diverting public attention away from domestic affairs and focusing it on international problems.

Republican strategists have pointed out that the one thing the Democrats want is to wage the campaign on the administration's international policies, and a GOP candidate who allows them to do that would be licked from the start because the party is split on these questions. Many prominent Republicans and big contributors have publicly supported New Deal foreign measures.

The managers also reported that in the coastal states, where Vandenberg is weakest, there is much public opposition to his "let's go get 'em" stand on the Japanese. No final conclusion was reached at the conference, but it is significant that since then Vandenberg has been silent about Far Eastern affairs.

Note—The consensus of opinion at the meeting was in favor of entering Vandenberg in more state primaries in opposition to Dewey. Most of the managers reported that the New Yorker, despite his lead in popular polls, was losing ground with local GOP leaders and newspapermen, with whom he had a number of personal clashes during his recent western sorties.

Political Chaff.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S name will appear on the Illinois preferential ballot, but not in Lake county, which contain's Chicago's famed "gold coast," if County Attorney Charles Mason can help it. He has announced that regardless of the state certifying board's favorable ruling, he intends to bar Roosevelt's name from the county ballot . . . . Ultra-New Deal haters, Lake county Republicans are among the heaviest contributors to the party. At one fund-raising luncheon in 1936, a group of them put up $200,000 . . . . For Dewey's Nebraska speech, his managers instructed local lieutenants to see to it that delegations from all sections of the state attended, including 100 leading women, 100 WPA workers and 100 prominent negroes if that many could be found . . . . Inside reports indicate that Senator Taft's latest farm speech went over well in the Midwest, and did much to erase the sour impression left by his first agriculutral talk in Des Moines, when he took a sock at crop benefit payments.

Pointed Hint.

THOSE AAA anniversary dinners last Friday may have had nothing to do with politics, as sternly announced by Secretary Wallace, but some local Democratic leaders had a different idea. To the boys it was too good an opportunity to make political hay, and behind the scenes they put on the heat.

Illustrative was an unsigned memorandum received by Iowa Democratic officials, calling on them to get busy and sell a lot of dinner tickets. Mimeographed on a plain sheet of paper, the message read in part:

"I consider it of the utmost importance that each Democratic precinct, county, district and state committeeman and committeewoman co-operate with each Iowa farm program dinner committee. See to it that tickets are bought in large numbers and that the attendance is record-breaking at your local celebration of these seven years of equality and prosperity under the Roosevelt-Wallace administration. We can assure a continuation of this program of co-operation and mutual advancement of farmers and townspeople by boosting these dinners, selling and buying tickets, attending the dinners and whooping things up generally."

The identity of the "I" is still unknown. Under suspicion is bustling State Chairman Ed Birmingham.

J. A. L. Woodhaven, N. Y.—The Republicans and Democrats have never been united, although these names have switched back and forth between them. Thomas Jefferson's party was originally called the Republican, later the Democratic-Republican, and finally the Democratic party. The opposition, led by Alexander Hamilton, was the Federalist party, later the Whigs, and since 1856 the Republican party. Between 1815 and 1828 both groups were nominally Democratic factions, the nearest approcah to one-party government in U. S. history.

A Bluebird Arrives

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I SAW a bluebird in the remnant of orchard above the house. In the morning he was flying about a border of weeds and stopped upon a forked branch of an apple tree. The bright rays of the sun reflected upon his back and cast a shadow of delicate blue tinge on the light hard shell of the old truck.

Blue—the warm bright blue of an April sky! A flutter of happiness among the withered weeds so lately hidden by festoons of snow. No other herald is quite so welcome or so sure. Spring is here.

Even the braided pods of hazelnuts hang drab and dormant yet. At this season, with only the fluffy fur of pussywillows, the greening buds of lilacs, the tempting reddening hints of soft maples to support his prophecy, he brings his modest chirp and vivid note of color to the farm scene. His quiet movements, his gentle manners and his generous tolerance of humans make him a common favorite.

The male bluebird comes first to reconnoiter and determine the general locality of the homesite. Then he brings his mate and together they decide upon the particular place where they will build. I have seen a pair sit close together upon a snag and consult for a long while. He seems rather indolent—or perhaps she invites him to co-operate by keeping out of the way—at my rate he flies to a nearby bush and warbles while she scours the garden the fencerows and hedges for materials for the nest.

When the walls are finished, plastered, lined with hair or wool or thistledown—when four greenish blue eggs are laid—he looks with paternal pride upon the promise of an early brood. He feeds his modest mate while she sits on the nest, but never does he help her with the hatching. Instead from a perch nearby, he gives her a hearty song of applause and encouragement.

A pair raised three different broods in the apple tree beside our house last summer. When each new family had been taught to fly and to shift for themselves, they started over again. The bluebird is first in spring and I have seen him linger in November, reluctant to say goodbye.

The glimpse of this one today gave me the lilty urge to tramp around the farm planning where to plow and what to sow. When I came in, late in the forenoon, my wife remarked:

"What are you so pleased about? Where have you been? Your feet are muddy but you're all aglow!"

I might have done a tap dance step. I might have turned a somersault, or thrown my hat into the air—I might have said that four walls cannot hold a man on days like this—but all I answered was, "I saw a bluebird!"

TYPES OF HOMES IN CITY LISTED ON RPI RECORDS

Survey Shows 79 Per Cent of 10,225 Dwelling Structures of Frame Construction.

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second of a series of articles on the work and findings of the Real Property inventory, better known as the RPI, conducted by the WPA in Mansfield.

By HAROLD K. MANSFIELD
Director, Real Property Inventory

The Real Property inventory project, which has just completed a survey of various facts about real estate in Mansfield and its suburbs, finds that there is a total of 8,079 dwellings of wood construction or 79 per cent of the total 10,225 dwelling structures. Brick construction rates second with 1,374 structures or 13.4 per cent of the total. Stucco accounts for 162 dwellings or 1.6 per cent while stone construction comes in last with but 56 houses or .6 per cent.

There was another classification made to take care of all other structures which did not fall in the above four categories—such as a combination of stone and frame, cement block, steel, etc. 554 dwelling structures or 5.4 per cent fell into this group.

The percentages on material of construction for the 203 urban areas in which Real Property Inventories were taken in 1934 through 1936, are as follows: wood 69.4 per cent; brick 23.2 per cent; stucco 5.3 per cent; other 2.1 per cent. For the 12 Ohio cities included above, the percentage of wood construction was 85.7 per cent and for brick 11.5 per cent.

Not An Old City.

Mansfield, surveyed and first settled in 1808, was incorporated as a village on Feb. 8, 1828 and incorporated as a city on Jan. 5 1857 with a population of 5 121. Mansfield is not an old city so there are comparatively few extremely old houses. It was possible to get "year built" reports on more than three-fourths of all our dwelling structures.

Of this number, 182 or 2.3 per cent were reported as being built before 1860.

In the national picture 55.2 per cent of the dwelling structures were built before 1915 and 23.5 per cent were built before 1895. This compares closely with our own figures of 3 894 houses or 51.2 per cent built before 1915 and 1998 houses or 26.3 per cent built before 1895.

Now to show how building in and around Mansfield fluctuated according to good times and depression years:

The top figure goes to the five year period 1925-1929 with a total of 1,147 dwelling structures built or 15.1 per cent of our total number of homes.

The period just closed 1935-1939 comes second with 940 new homes or 12.4 per cent of the total. The 1920-1924 period rates a close third place with 806 houses or 10.6 per cent.

The depression year: 1930-1934 produced few new homes with a total of 437 built or 5 7 per cent of the total. The picture of this 5-year span becomes clearer when we look at the record of building permits issued for new homes within the city limits which amounted to 257 or 3.4 per cent of the total or an average of 50 new homes a year.

We have all been very much aware that there has been a sharp increase in the number of new homes built during the past year Lut it is even more impressive to see the figures set down in black and white.

According to the building permit records, which list within the city limits all new building and remodeling together with the valuation of each, there were built this last year a total of 222 residential structures containing 246 dwellings units with a valuation of $1,073,750.

This is the first time in the past dozen years that more than 150 dwellings have been built in any single year. In 1938, 133 homes were built. In both 1923 and in 1925 the figures of 222 was topped. The record year fas 1923 with 277 dwellings containing 299 dwelling units having a total valuation of $1,129,971.

Building material prices kept going up so that in 1925, 268 homes were built but at a valuation of $1,475,500. In 1926 the number of homes was down to 218 but the valuation was up to $1,699,725.

During the period, 1930-1935, there were less than 100 houses built per year. The low was hit in 1932 with only 20 new structures and not much better in 1933 with but 21 new homes.

GRAND JURY TO RECONVENE FOR BRIEF SESSION

Meets Wednesday With 17 Cases Scheduled for Hearing; Molesting Case Up.

The January term grand jury will re-convene at 8.30 a. m. Wednesday to study at least 17 cases in a session that is expected to last a day and a half.

The jurors will be sked by Prosecutor G. W. Marriott to indict George Beck, 25, accused Mansfield child molester, on charges of kidnaping and child-stealing.

Beck, held in the county jail under $5,000 bond, allegedly molested 11 small girls in the Mansfield area in recent weeks, luring them into his car.

Defendants in other cases to come before the jury and the charges against them are:

John J. Sesler, shooting with intent to wound; Helen Zeppito, burglarizing an inhabited dwelling; R. H. Scott and Ernest Fisher, issuing checks with insufficient funds; George Wilson, grand larceny; Paul A. Dill, forgery; Robert Dudte, Washington Carter, Clarence Norris, Clifford Webb, George L. Offenburger, Richard Southard, and Norman McNeely, all accused of breaking and entering; Earl Neal, operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent, and Floyd Dawson, non-support.

The prosecutor said there will be one or two other cases in which secret indictments will be sought on charges of abandonment and non-support.

SCOTS LAMENT BRITISH ARMY BAN ON KILTS

How Will Germans Know When to Run? They Ask; After New Ruling.

(By United Press)

LONDON — From the lowlands to the highlands there is a wailing lament these days—a lament that no bagpipe could equal—over a War Office order relegating the Scots battle dress to a "walking out" uniform.

The "Ladies from Hell," whose swirling kilts earned them that title and the respect of the Germans in the World War, have been placed in the utilitarian but drab battle dress of the British army, and the clans don't like it.

The War Office respects the sentiment of the Scots for his kilt, but sees too many disadvantages and outright dangers, even if the Scot is ready to freeze his knees for pride.

The kilt, says the War Office, affords little protection against poison gas. There are too many who remember the horror of the brave Scots trapped on the barbed wire in No. Man's Land in the World War. Finally it hasn't the comfort of the new battle dress.

Even Scots admit that the kilt may chafe the knees, particularly in rainy weather. Its proper length is the mathematical middle of the knees. Marching through the rain, it hits the same spot and its rough edge can cause the knees to bleed.

This war hasn't yet produced long vigils in rain-filled shell holes, but it may, and there again the kilt is exceedingly uncomfortable. The Maginot Line may not be cootie infested yet, but in the World War the little pests found the pleats of the kilt a snug retreat.

To all these arguments many Scots have been either impassive or indignant. They say: If it rains and there is mud, the Scots marching through it removes his kilt. If the trench is water-logged, the Scot carries the kilt in his pack until he reaches a drier spot.

And contrary to popular belief, argue the Highlanders, the kilt is much warmer than other forms of dress. It requires a great amount of cloth because of the pleats, averaging 7½ yards. Its wide and thick material gives protection around the small of the back and the abdomen.

The War Office agrees on the amount of material and here again is a reason for the decision to issue no more kilts. They eat deeply into the vital wool supplies which Britain needs to clothe her armed forces.

But the Seaforth Highlanders, the Gordons, the Black Watch and the Argylls still want to know how the Germans are going to know when to run if they can't see the kilties.

To this the authorities respond in the words of the late Field Marshal Joseph Joffre, who said of kilts:

"Pour l'amour c'est magnifique; mais pour la guerre—c'est impossible."

MOON SHOWS OFF

It'll Stage Rare Celestial Show Next April 7.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The country will be treated to a rare celestial show on Sunday, April 7, when the moon will black out the sun in an annular or ring eclipse.

Prof. William H. Barton, jr., executive curator of the Hayden Planetarium, said today the moon's disc would cover approximately 86 per cent of the sun, producing a pronounced twilight effect in which the atmosphere will have a peculiar transparency, tinted an eerie, greenish yellow.

Maids Treated Inhumanely

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

When Robert Burns wrote about "man's inhumanity to man," he, of course, included women. But women's, it's regretful to say, sometimes go a bit farther in the matter of inhumanity toward their fellow-women.

In these days of economic storm and stress, many girls of good families and background have taken jobs as domestics. They are mothers' helpers and maids; some of them are graduate dieticians who, failing to get positions in institutions, enlist as cooks for families.

I've had many letters from girls of this type, telling me that they would be contented in domestic service if the people for whom they work would only allow them to have company. But company is taboo in the kitchen, even after working hours.

If you've ever attended a conference which has to do with home economics or the like, you will doubtless recall the plaints of well-dressed matrons that American girls decline to take jobs as domestics. They'll endure any kind of factory work in preference, which is hard for your comfortable matron to understand.

A short cut to the maid's reasoning, in so many of the cases, is that these girls, even if they are given good wages and comfortable quarters, are not permitted to have company. Especially is the boy friend debarred.

Girls who undertake to do domestic work are as human as girls holding down white-collar jobs, or debutantes holding no job at all. If they're normal, they hope to marry and have homes of their own. But how is this possible when the only place they can meet the boy friend is on some dismal street corner. Take this girl's letter for instance:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"When I was 17, my mother and father died only a few months apart, so I took service as a maid and work for a wealthy family who occupy a large house. I have worked for them for ten years and they are very kind, considerate, give me excellent wages, and do not overwork me.

"But I get so lonely in my room of evenings, for I am not allowed to have even my girl friends to come to see me. Last summer I met a very nice and sensible young man who has a steady job and good connections. But when we want to see each other, we have to go to a movie, walk the snowy street, sit in his car, or drive around, so we can be together for a while.

"I told him I could not receive him in the house. Although he was sympathetic about this, how can I expect him to meet me on street corners when he can visit other girls in their homes? Would it be proper for me to visit him in his room? Or could we rent a room so that we could meet some place where it's warm and comfortable? I hardly know what is the right thing to do.

"UNHAPPY."

I hope if this meets the eye of the lady who has had this faithful employe for the past ten years (or any other matron who declines to let her maids have company) that she will try to put herself in the place of such a girl. Then she will not be unduly shocked when she hears of a girl visiting a young man in his room, or renting a room so that they can see each other with some degree of comfort.

It's too bad for a nice girl to be driven to such extremes. And I hope the young man will shorten the courtship and take the girl to a home of her own. Otherwise, what is to be expected.

Don't Be Discouraged As Parent

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

AS PARENTS we get pretty blue sometimes; I know I do.

These experiences of emotional depression are good for us, keeping us humble. As I have often said, we are in great need of humility. But we can have too much of it at one time. When it comes too heavily and we feel exceedingly low for a long period, then we need to be lifted out. We can help ourselves.

In my book, The Modern Parent, after picturing as vividly as I was able your frailties and mine as parents, I wrote:

"Now please do not be too hard on yourself. First find comfort in the fact that practically all of us parents do some of these things which, when examined critically, seem pretty bad. Just remember that everyone who writes and speaks on problems of rearing children is human, just like yourself, and that many of them do not measure up to the standards which they set; that whereas they may excel in certain things, you also may be doing scores of things much better than they do; that your problems may have been much more complex and difficult than those they tell about and seem to solve so easily; and that whatever errors you have made you have not made on purpose. Parents like yourself do not try deliberately to be bad parents . . .

Differ Greatly.

"We differ greatly from one another, of course. Some of the frailties which are most pronounced in me may be very faint in you; some of the things I do which greatly annoy my children you may rarely do, or you may do but very slightly, in relation to your children.

"We may get tremendously discouraged when we try to match ourselves with our ideal parent (who does not exist). But as we look around us we easily can find ourselves excelling in some small traits of parenthood at least.

"Name to yourself the things you are sure you have done well. In some respects there may be few parents as praiseworthy as you are. When you get your attention upon a few of your apparent failures, they may look so large that you are blinded to a number of your successes, which may be so large and influential for the child's good and happiness that the failures which seemed overwhelming to you are mere shadows. It is sometimes hard for us to keep perspective and give ourselves due credit for our own victories."

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, March 13.

The lunar transits affecting the affairs of this day are rather conflicting. While there is sign of an expansive and benefic influence in things generally, there also are deep sources of deception and trickery to be handled with vigilance, sagacity and a wise, judicial state of mind. Friends in high places may be called on for advice and more substantial co-operation. In strictly private affairs friendship and hospitality play a major part in promoting happiness and social gratifications.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a particularly pleasant and progressive year in their domestic social and affectional life, with much of a congenial and festive nature transpiring. But in business there are rather adverse prospects, with intrigue, treachery and sinister undercurrents with which to cope. However, resort to friendship, good fellowship and the wise counsel of those in power and prestige may be influential in routing adverse situations. But keep alert to falsity and impositions.

A child born on this day may be fairly talented and ambitions, having a warm and expansive nature, but one easily taken advantage of, because of its susceptibility and sensitivity to schemes and subtleties.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

My father did not open his eyes until after the door had closed behind the man whom he had just been interviewing. Indeed, he kept his eyes closed until Lillian said softly: "He's gone, Chief," then he opened them, motioned us to seats, and smiled at our anxious faces.

"Let me put one fear of yours to rest," he said. "I am not exhausted. I am perfectly able to say to you now the few words that I must say at this time. So please let us have no protests that I am too tired to talk, or any suggesions that I rest for a little while before proceeding."

"I am going to tell you now certain things which you must remember carefully against the contingency that I might be—absent—when the final act of this melo-drama is played."

"As you have probably guessed," he went on, "this man was an emissary from Jack Leslie, sent to me to deliver a message which is the most egregious piece of effrontery I have ever seen."

He paused for a second, then spoke more rapidly.

"I can come to but one conclusion," he said. "Whatever mental balance Jack Leslie had, and he had much to plan some of his coups, must have slipped a cog. The man must have become insane, and as his cunning is probably just as great as eyer, we must realize that we are dealing with something far more dangerous than a murderous criminal. We are facing a homicidal maniac. You can outguess the first, but never the second."

"His message," he went on, "is that he will call off what he is pleased to call his 'siege' of us, and will also deliver Queen Olga emeralds intact upon two conditions."

"His conditions are that we dismiss all our guards and he says he will guarantee to do the same for his hide-away—which he defies us to find." At this statement my father smiled at Leslie's ignorance of the fact that he knew the location and almost every detail of the outlaw's elaborate hideaway, and had guarded the possible escape from their hideout by plane, boat or motor. "Then," he continued, "he says that we must deliver Noel and Mary over to him, and make no further inquiry as to their fate."

As my father ceased speaking, our poise held no longer. Agonized exclamations of horror from Lillian and me, and equally horrified profanity from Dicky and Harry punctuated his astounding revelation. But no one of us dared to ask him what he had told Jack Leslie's emissary.

He waited until our exclamations had ceased, and then went on unperturbed:

"You probably are curious as to the reply I sent back to Leslie," he said, "and I am afraid you will censure it. But it is the only thing to do. I told him to tell his chief that I agreed to his every condition, and that when he sent back word to me, naming the rendezvous to which he wished Mary and Noel sent, I personally would accompany them thither."

There was no gasp of horror from any of us this time, for we knew that my father, in familiar parlance, would "cut off his right arm" before delivering Mary and Noel into Leslie's murderous hands. But as he paused, Lillian spoke impulsively.

"I don't know what you've evolved in that head of yours, Chief, but I'll bet it's the last word in clever schemes."

HOW TO TELL if you are CONSTIPATED And What To Do!

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

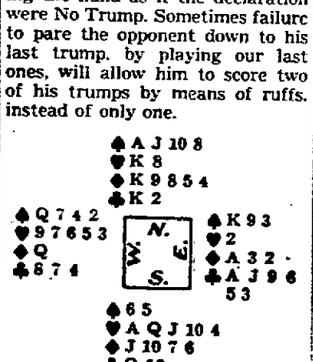
"The Authority on Authorities"

FINISH AS A NO TRUMP

ORDINARILY we hate to get into a situation in which one of the defenders is left with the last trump after ours are all gone. There are contracts, however, which can be made only by deliberately building that position. If we have have a bunch of set-up cards, and the man with the last trump can do nothing but lead to them, then we really finish playing the hand as if the declaration were No Trump. Sometimes failure to pare the opponent down to his last trump, by playing our last ones, will allow him to score two of his trumps by means of ruffs, instead of only one.



(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♦	2 ♣	2 ♥
Pass	2 ♠	3 ♣	3 ♥
Pass	4 ♥

At two tables of a duplicate tournament the bidding was the same, also the early play, on this deal. West led the club 8 to the A, and club K took the second trick, the heart K and A were taken, then the diamond J led to the Q, K and A. East firing back the club J, ruffed by the heart 10. Then came the difference.

One declarer played his heart Q and J, leaving West with the last trump. He then began to lead diamonds. West ruffed the second one, but had nothing to return but a spade to dummy's A, the declarer finishing with diamond tricks and making his contract.

The other declarer, after ruffing the third club, was afraid to bare himself of his last trump, so immediately led diamonds. West ruffed with his 6, led his spade Q to the A, and the dummy had to lead either another diamond which West could ruff or a spade to East's K, in either case giving the defenders the setting trick.

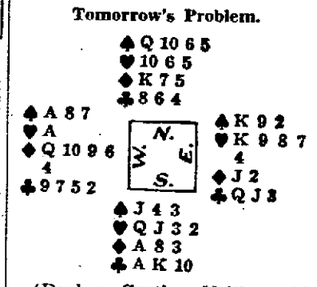
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is the best defense on this deal against South's 1-No Trump, doubled by East and passed by the next three players?

AGREEMENT ON PEACE REPORTED REACHED TODAY

London and Berlin Hear That Finns and Russia Will Bring War to End.

be interfering with the progress of peace talks.

One theory expresed was that the offer increased Russian apprehensions regarding possible British intentions of creating a "northern front" and thereby strengthened Russian determination to obtain certain defense points in Finland.

Yesterday some Scandinavian quarters had characterized the British offer of help as a "last attempt to stop peace" in Finland, reasoning that Britain and France would regard such a peace as a blow to their war against Germany.

Final Terms Laid Down, Sweden Hears.

STOCKHOLM — (AP) — Final Soviet terms for ending the Finnish war were laid down at a conference early today in Moscow, the newspaper Stockholms Tidningen reported.

The paper said Joseph Stalin addressed a "friendly" remark to one of the Finish delegates, Dr. Juhu Kusti Paasikivi, saying that had Paasikivi continued to head the Finnish group in pre-war conferences last fall, the war could have been avoided.

Earlier, some Scandinavian sources had insisted that Russia was modifying her demands to the extent of not asking for possession of Hanko, a southwest coast fortress town. Russia, in her pre-war negotiations, had demanded a lease or cession of the Hanko peninsula as a naval base.

German-Born Finns Ask Hitler's Aid.

BULLETIN

HELSINKI —(U.P.)— Russian attacks east of Viipuri yesterday were repulsed and, because of stubborn Finnish resistance, failed to make progress in the red army's effort to occupy Finland's second city, a war communique announced today.

HELSINKI, Finland—(U.P.)—Finnish citizens of German birth have appealed to Adolf Hitler and other German leaders for support and have received the terse reply that their appeal has been placed in the hands of the men to whom it was addressed, it was disclosed today.

"We appeal to you from the bottom of our hearts not to permit that the sacrifices Germans once made for this land shall have been in vain," said the appeal to Hitler, Field Marshal Hermann Goering, Nazi No. 2; Gen. Walter von Brauchitsch, commander in chief of the army, and Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, commander in chief of the navy.

"Raise the voice of the Reich before all civilized nations against those bloody deeds Russia is perpetrating on Finnish women and children and on this country, which is an outpost of the German and the western world."

About 100 Finns of German birth, many of whom fought for Finland in its war of independence, signed the appeal.

News of the appeal was made public as the snow for which Finland had hoped and prayed for weeks came at last, and the people, on their fourth day of tension, awaited news of the peace negotiations at Moscow.

The snow which had come nearly every year but this one, and which had been expected to stop the Red army machine, started falling heavily last night.

smiled, "to cut red tape. But that's not a new problem, and I don't suppose it ever will be possible to solve it."

The new member said one of his first tasks after getting settled down would be to study government costs. Meanwhile, he intends to support every proposal for "reasonable" curtailment.

"As I see it now," he said, "one of the places to start in efforts to balance the budget is in the operation of federal relief agencies."

He suggested that savings could be affected by turning over relief administration to the states with some financial aid from the federal government.

McGregor has been appointed to membership on three house committees. One is the territories committee of which Rep. Robert F. Jones, Lima Republican, also is a member.

The others are the committees on invalid pensions and on public buildings and grounds.

Nominating petitions for the regular two-year term in congress were filed for Congressman McGregor late yesterday with the Richland county board of elections. The petitions, bearing 879 signatures from all six counties in the district, were submitted by Mrs. McGregor. They were the first to be filed for congress in the district.

grounds that the Ohio delegation would be free to support him for the presidential nomination if President Roosevelt elected not to seek a third term.

The state organization delegates, although nominally pledged to national committeeman Charles Sawyer as a "favorite son" presidential candidate, would be agreed to support the president if he sought renomination.

Sawyer indicated that he would be ready to announce the complete slate of Ohio delegates by Thursday.

Kenneth B. Johnston, Columbus attorney, filed for the Democratic nomination for attorney general, and Rep. John Vorys, Republican, of the 12th congressional district, filed for renomination.

A movement to draft Gregg Halbrook, Hamilton attorney, for the Democratic Third district congressional race developed at Dayton. The district now is represented by Harry N. Routzohn, Republican.

ALLIANCE VOTES ON 3 LEVIES

Boosting Of Insurance Rates Set As Reason For Balloting.

ALLIANCE—(AP)—Alliance voted today on three special levies which would add about $40,000 a year to the city's income.

They included a .75-mill issue to enable the city to add 10 men to the eight-man fire department, buy a new pumper and reopen an outlying station; .5-mill, to restore 18 men to the police force; and .25-mill to provide a new boiler and other city hall equipment.

The Ohio inspection bureau recently checked fire-fighting facilities here and ordered Alliance placed in a classification which automatically boosted insurance rates an estimated $35,000.

HURT NEAR CITY

Two Ashlanders Injured Near Scene of Fatal Accident.

An Ashland woman was in Samaritan hospital at Ashland today and her daughter received minor injuries as the result of an accident on route 42, three miles northeast of Mansfield late yesterday afternoon. The accident occured near the scene of a fatal crash Saturday night.

Mrs. Mary Britenbucher, 66, sustained a fractured knee cap and facial injuries, while her daughter, Mrs. Florence Sealer, who was driving the car, received cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Sealer told highway patrolmen that a car driven by Bennie White, colored, Cleveland, and carrying four other passengers, stopped suddenly at the Pine Tree tavern, and her machine crashed into it.

Saturday night a car turning off the road to approach a restaurant in that approximate location, caused an accident in which Merle Stark of Ashland suffered a broken back and Thomas Dugan, Philadelphia, was fatally injured.

DURBIN ANNOUNCES

HANDS OFF

Prosecutor Told Not to Butt in on CIO Testimony.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— An order by Federal Judge Mel G. Underwood today directed Herman Herzog, 39, prisoner in the state penitentiary, to give testimony in the $7,500,000 damage suit filed against the Congress of Industrial Organizations by the Republic Steel corporation.

The court's ruling also prohibited Stark county Prosecutor A. C. L. Barthelmeh from interfering with the taking of testimony. Attorneys for the steel workers organizing committee (CIO) will take the prisoner's testimony in a deposition, probably on Friday. They claimed his story was essential for the defense.

Herzog was committed to the prison in October, 1937 from Stark county following his conviction on charges of illegal possession of explosives during the "little steel" strike of the previous summer.

Marvin G. Harrison, counsel for the SWOC, who sought the order directing Herzog to give testimony contended that Barthelmeh had "interfered" with a previous attempt to obtain the prisoner's testimony.
